Coolidge O.K. Put On Move to Kill Lease

Senate to Vote Ouster of Denby Today, Is Prediction

the naval oil lease scandal developed still more ramifications today. The principal developments were:

1. President Coolidge signed the Walsh resolution directing the institution of proceedings to nullify the Doheny and Sinclair leases, but in an accompanying settlement took exception to the preamble, in which the senate usurped judicial function when it pronounced the leases invalid and corruptly obtained.

May Vote Denby Out Today

2. The senate paved the way for a vote today on the resolution calling for Secretary of the Navy Denby's resignation, with indications pointing to its adoption.

3. A resolution offered by Senator La Follette to widen the scope of the inquiry so as to include investigation of the circumstances under which the Honolulu Consolidated Oil obtained control of a large tract of land in naval reserve No. 2 (California).

4. Senator Dill introduced a resolution calling upon the state department for all diplomatic correspondence and other data relating to the Colombian treaty, the ratification of which was strongly urged by Albert B. Fall as another step for the protection of American oil concessions.

Walsh In Bitter Attack

Senator Walsh of Montana assailed Denby on the floor of the senate Friday afternoon.

His progress was as precise as it was pitiless.

He did not charge the secretary of the navy with crimes warranting impeachment. He specifically deprecated any such intention.

Instead he charged him with the brand of stupidity which Talleyrand said was worse than crime. He charged him with blundering. He declared:

"I say I bear no malice toward Mr. Denby. He tells us that the wool was pulled over his eyes, and he hopes to escape by that infantile excuse the just retribution that is due him for his faithlessness to the great trust that he assumed.

"Mr. President I am not to be deterred. I shall nothing extenuate nor set down aught in malice, but I am not to be deterred from my duty by any such banal appeal as that made by Mr. Denby."

Communism Too Strong to Be Shaken By Lenin's Death

Author of "The Outline of History" Declares Communism Is Definite, While Fascism Is Empty, Dramatic

So Lenin is dead. He died on the eve of recognition of the Soviet government by the western powers. For most practical purposes the work of Lenin was over before 1920. His death now or a little later would make only the smallest difference in the destinies of Russia.

H. G. Wells

For the communist party which still controls Russia is sustained by a system of dogmas, disciplines, experiences and traditions so much stronger than any single individual that individuals, though they may serve it more or less effectively, cannot control nor deflect it. They must move inside its limitations. Russia under Communist rule is at the opposite pole to such a phase of affairs as would evoke Caesarism. It is over the western Latin democracies subjected to the adventures and ravages of uncontrolled rich men, that dictators arise.

Lenin was never in reality a dictator as Mussolini is a dictator. He impressed one as being in the grip of forces quite beyond his control, albeit they were forces he had himself helped to develop and organize. Communism is definite, directive, compelling, while fascism is a dramatic, empty, puerile, vague, violent thing, a young ass to be ridden anywhere by a bold competent rider. A score of Lenins might die and communism would go on as though nothing had changed. Without Mussolini, the Fascisti might do anything, fall into the torrent, get lost, destroy society, vanish.

I saw Lenine in 1920 in the Kremlin. He was an extraordinarily fragile little thing with small hands clasped together upon a corner of his desk, little feet that dangled from his chair far off the ground. He was very bald. I learn now with astonishment that I was the older man. He put his amusing Mongoloid face a little on one side as we talked, with something of the wary expression of a fencer. When he found out I didn't want to score points for or against communism, but to learn what they proposed to do next, particularly what they proposed to do about the peas-

Blighted Love Brought M'Adoo Into Oil Case

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Washington heard on Thursday how the public lands committee learned that William G. McAdoo was employed by F. L. Doheny. In the story there is a romance—the desire of a young man to leave his profession and become a government employe so that he might claim the hand of a beautiful society girl.

A Washington young man, who aided the democratic party in the preparation of the federal reserve act, and its passage through congress, became an applicant for secretary of the federal reserve board in the first Wilson administration. He desired this not because he wanted a government position, but because a society girl, to whom he was attached, had set this as a goal for his ambition, one which would aid him in the future.

It appeared an easy thing to get, but something intervened. His supposed strength with McAdoo, when tested, proved worthless.

The society girl married another. The other night quite casually while the Teapot Dome was being discussed over a dinner table, there fell to the young man the information that McAdoo had been employed by Doheny. The information was conveyed to Senator Reed who brought it to the attention of the public lands committee.

And this is the story how the public learned that William G. McAdoo stepped from public office into a salary of $25,000 as one of counsel for the Doheny interests.

Farmer-Labor Party Urged In Wisconsin

Platt Tells of Questionaire Sent Out to Members In the State

That the Wisconsin Nonpartisan League will probably become the farmer branch of a new party, thus following the example of Minnesota, was the statement made today by Chester C. Platt, state manager of the league, and campaign manager for George F. Comings.

Mr. Platt said:

"The success of progressive principles in Minnesota shown by the election of two United States senators within one year was due to the fact that farmers and wage workers united.

"Answers to a questionnanre which is being sent out to our most active league members shows an almost unanimous sentiment in favor of merging the league into a Farmer-Labor party, although many prefer the name Progressive party.

"Ninety per cent of those answering questionnaires said they favored nominating a set of La Follette presidential electors by petition to run on the official November ballot, so that regardless of what the Cleveland convention may do Wisconsin progressives will have a chance to vote for the candidate of their choice.

"The questionnaire reveals an almost unanimous sentiment for George F. Comings for governor, and some urge that he should be put in the field as a Farmer-Labor or Progressive candidate, instead of contesting the Republican primary. This, however, I deem impractical on account of the uncertainty as to how strongly a new party movement may be endorsed. Unless favored by Senator La Follette it would fail to enlist the enthusiasm of many."

Mr. Platt left Madison today for St. Louis to attend the Conference for Progressive Political action.

Quick Relief From Constipation

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomels' old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic consipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothng vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache — torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at Bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

Questions and Answers

This Department Is Conducted By the Dane County League of Women Voters; Send In Your Questions On Government, Education and Citizenship

Q.—What is the City Manager plan?

A.—The City Manager plan is the employment of a manager to run the business of the government of the city. The city manager takes the place of the mayor, under the mayor-council form of city government, but is different in several essential respects. The manager is always selected by the city council or commission, while the mayor is uniformly popularly elected. The mayor is a political official and is elected because of his political standing in the community. The city manager is purely an administrative official, and is selected by the council because of his executive and technical ability. The mayor is normally the head of his party in city politics; the city manager is supposed to stay out of politics.

The mayor is elected for usually two years. The city manager holds his office at the pleasure of the city council and may be removed at any time. In some respects the mayor has greater powers than the manager but in other respects the manager has the greater powers. The mayor is the chief policy determining official of the city. In this respect the mayor has the greater powers than the manager who does not share the responsibility of the council in passing upon the policies of the city but in the control over the various departments of city government the manager usually has greater powers than the mayor. An essential feature of the City Manager plan is that the council must keep hands off the running of the various departments of city government and give the manager the complete control. The council passes upon all questions of policy and may at any time remove the manager who does not produce results but it must not step in and attempt to dictate to the manager how to run the various offices and departments of the city government.

There is a close analogy between the City Manager plan of government and the organization of the typical business corporation. The voters correspond to the stockholders the councilmen to the directors, and the city manager to the general manager. The directors of a bank or a manufacturing corporation pass upon the broad policies and select and remove the president, superintendent, or manager, but they do not dictate to him how to run the various details. The stockholders expect the concern to produce profits, and if profits are not produced, they will look to the board of directors, who in turn will hold the manager responsible. So it is with the voters who are looking to the city government for an efficient conduct of city affairs. There is no shifting of responsibility under the City Manager plan. If things don't go right, the manager is held responsible. The city council is in turn responsible to the people for the city manager and may turn him out at any aime if he fails to live up to his responsibilities and produce results.

Q.—Where has the City Manager plan been tried out and how has it worked?

A.—Dayton, O., was the first city to adopt the City Manager plan in 1913. It has worked quite successfully in Dayton and the voters of that city recently voted to retain it. Since 1913 the city Manager plan has been adopted in 300 cities in the United States. There are less than a half dozen cities which have decided to return to the old Mayor-Council form of government after once adopting the City Manager plan.

Cleveland, O., is the largest city which has adopted the City Manager plan. The new city manager has just been inducted into office at the beginning of this year, and it is too early to say how the city government works out in Cleveland.

There are two cities in Wisconsin which have elected to come under the optional City Manager charter law, Kenosha and Janesville. The City Manager plan has not been in use in either of these cities long enough to pass final judgment, but news reports indicate that both cities are finding the new city government more efficient than the old.

Q.—Is not the Commission form of city government more suitable than the City Manager plan for small cities?

A.—About 15 years ago the Commission form of city government was very popular with municipal reformers in this country and was adopted in over 200 cities. Under this plan the voters of the city elect a commission of from three to seven members, which serves as the city council, and each member of the commission acts as the head of one of the departments of city government. The Commission form of city government usually proved to be an improvement over the old Mayor-Council type, but it did not work out as well as its advocates predicted. Since 1915 only a small number of cities have adopted the Commission form of city government, and many Commission cities have changed over to the City Manager type, or to the Commission-Manager type. The principal reasons why the commission form of city government has not proved a complete success is that it does not centralize responsibility in the hands of a single person nor does it secure persons with technical ability to run the various departments of the city. The City Manager plan is an improvement over the Commission plan in that it places the responsibility for running of the affairs of the city in the hands of one man—the city manager. It also makes it possible for the city manager to select especially well qualified persons to run the various departments of the city. It is a well established principle of political science that officers who must have technical qualifications cannot be wisely chosen by popular vote. The people usually elect the candidate who is the best talker or best handshaker. The government of a modern city is becoming more and more a technical or business proposition, and the best form of government is that which will secure the best qualified men to run the various departments. The city manager has the power to select the heads of the departments of the city and generally he selects the best qualified person whom he can obtain. This is the chief cause of the usual success of the City Manager plan.

The City Manager plan has worked as successfully in small cities as in large cities. There is no particular reason why it should not be suitable for cities of all sizes. In towns and small cities the manager is frequently also the head of one or more departments of the city government, and usually a man with engineering training is selected to be the manager of small cities. More than half of the cities which have city managers are under 10,000 population.

Q.—May cities in Wisconsin adopt the City Manager form of government?

A.—Yes. The general municipal law of Wisconsin contains an optional city manager charter which may be adopted by cities of the state. If the proposed home rule amendment to the constitution is adopted at the fall election of this year, the cities of the state may draw up their own charters and adopt any type of city government.

Greenville, Texas. — "Words can not express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. 42 University Organizations Occupied Boxes At "Prom of History" Last Night

39 Fraternities Included In Guest Parties

Winter Sports Aid Dancers In Entertaining This Week-End

More than 1,700 dancers in 42 university organizations last night enjoyed the 1925 "Prom of History." Of the 42 groups which had engaged prom boxes, 39 are fraternities.

Sleigh rides, skiing, tobogganing and other winter sports are attracting many prom-goers to Madison's snow-covered hills and vales as a diversion from the whirl of dances, dinners, and house parties.

Cottage parties at points around Lakes Mendota and Monona, dances and dinners at local halls and hotels, and novel house parties are included in the social programs of this week.

Masons Hold Mardi Gras

House decorations are of numerous kinds. Perhaps the most popular scheme includes smilax and cut flowers. Carnival decorations will be used at a number of parties.

What promises to be one of the most colorful events of the prom session will be the Mardi Gras festival at the Square and Compass house Saturday evening. Decorations of blue and gray will add to the gayety of the affair.

A description of the interior of the Beta Theta Pi house for this week might well be taken from a page of Sir Walter Scott. Trimmings and decorations after the fashion of an old English banquet hall furnish the background for all parties at the chapter house.

The prom chairman's mother, Mrs. H. A. Nolte, Wauwatosa, Wis., is being entertained as a guest during prom by the Betas.

Betas Largest Group

The Chi Phis held a house party yesterday in a cottage at historic Black Hawk cave.

Four non-fraternity groups were attending prom. The Caisson club, Lake Street group, Arembe club and the Knights of Columbus are taking part in Wisconsin's annual social event. Several other non-fraternity organizations are affiliated with various Greek-letter fraternities during prom.

The largest individual group attending prom was the Beta Theta Pi party with 55 couples. Last year Square and Compass led the list with the same number. In several cases two fraternities combined for the prom social events.

Mrs. M. V. O'Shea Explains Purpose of Voters' League

In answer to a demand from Dane county women, especially those in Madison who hear much of the activities of the Dane County League of Women Voters, which is a part of a state and national organization, and are not certain just what the organization means, Mrs. M. V. O'Shea, president of the league, has written the following article. Her description of and explanation for the activities of the league as presented in the article, will be read in several local leagues in the county within the fortnight.

By MRS. M. V. O'SHEA

The League of Women Voters is a national organization, composed of forty-seven state leagues and governed by a board of thirteen officers and directors. Each local league, like ours, is affiliated with the state league, and the national.

Why do we have such leagues? Four years ago 27,000,000 women in our country became voters through an amendment to the Constitution of our government. They were conscious of ignorance in political and governmental affairs and anxious to learn. The League of Women Voters has been organized for the purpose of developing these new voters into a force for good government. It is an organization of women, working for women—not because women have a separate part in government, but because their sudden enfranchisement has made them a group with a collective need for education and experience. To train and equip these new voters to play an active and helpful part in our public life is the purpose of the League of Women Voters. The league believes that qualified women in administrative offices, upon boards and commissions and in legislative bodies will contribute a necessary point of view to government in the United States, and to its international relations. The league, therefore, urges the principle of election and appointment of qualified women to positions in national, state, and local governments.

The League of Women Voters has, from its beginning, urged its members to enroll in the political parties. It holds, however, that a citizen's duty is to country first, and to party second; that a party is only a means to an end; and that the end should be kept constantly in view. The league believes that the activities of the parties do not cover the whole field of civic duties, but that there is a distinct field for other than party organizations, whose members will work together for certain public objects. It is in the category of such organizations that the League of Women Voters belongs, and so it will be a strong reinforcing power to all efforts for human betterment.

Mrs. M. V. O'Shea

"Scaramouche," Tale of French Revolution, Heads Coming Week's Movie Offerings

Screen And Vodvil Stars Coming To Madison

AT THE PARKWAY

"SCARAMOUCHE," direct from its sensational runs in Chicago and Milwaukee with its cast of thirty principals and its massive stage settings is announced as the coming week's attraction at the Parkway, starting with tomorrow's matinee. This will be the first time that this wonderful picture has ever been presented at popular prices. "Scaramouche" is adapted from the widely read novel by Rafael Sabatini and directed by Rex Ingram, the man who produced "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Lewis Stone, Alice Terry and Ramon Novarro, three idols of movie fans play the leading roles and over 11,000 people participate in the stirring scenes which are laid in the soul stirring days of the French Revolution. There are many beautiful and massive scenes laid in picturesque France and the ball ensembles reflect credit to the genius of the director. There will be daily continuous performances at the Parkway starting at 1 p. m. and ending at 11 p. m. The Parkway orchestra will be augmented for the occasion under the leadership of Prof. George Cervenka and will render special programs and as the additional attraction Lew Ferris, noted baritone, will be heard in a new repertoire of songs.

AT THE ORPHEUM

The reigning feature at the Orpheum for the new show starting tomorrow will be an act that has caused much interest among the fight fans and the public in general. The European boxing girls who have with them the lady champion of the world, Miss Steffi Bernert, will give exhibitions. Miss Steffi Bernert lays claim to the championship and will defend her title at any time. With the boxing girls is Reinhart Roland, Europe's foremost athletic director. Harry Holman and a pair of beautiful young misses present a comedy sketch entitled "Hard Boiled Hampton." Mr. Holman is a well known comedy actor. The plot centers around a hard boiled office manager who yells at his help and makes life miserable until every one begins to hate him, when an incident changes his whole attitude and his better character is shown. Harry Hines will entertain with his extemporaneous fun. Mr. Hines grinds out everything that comes his way into laughs. The Melroy Sisters have sung and danced together for years ever since they were able to toddle. They are chic and clever. Eddie Black and Claire O'Donnell present "A Village Nut." The girl is in the roll of a visiting actress and the village nut has a run in with her. One other big feature act will complete the program.

AT THE STRAND

Last times today, Sidney Chaplin, Conrad Nagel and Elmo Lincoln in "Rendezvous," Marshall Neilan' drama of a Yankee lover in the throes of Russia's upheaval. Special added feature for four days starting today, exclusive movies of Junior prom and prom activities. Starting Sunday, Douglas MacLean in "The Yankee Consul," taken from the famous musical comedy which made Broadway echo with gales of merriment. The film story is a perfectly killing romance of the U. S. Consular Service and has a surprise with a kick in every foot of film. It's funnier than the "Hottentot" in which Douglas MacLean was the feature star. In "The Yankee Consul," MacLean is supported by an all star cast including Patsy Ruth Miller. The added features are exclusive movies of the nineteen twenty-five Junior prom, a Felix Cat Cartoon comedy, latest news reel and a Western Rodeo picture. Coming Wednesday, Richard Barthelmess in "Twenty One."

AT THE MAJESTIC

"Bag and Baggage," the best comedy drama of the present season will be shown for the last times at the performances tomorrow. A new policy will take effect at the Majestic starting Sunday when William Russell's new picture will be shown. "Times Have Changed," his latest starring vehicle is to be shown for four days, from Sunday to Thursday, when a new picture will be set in. Mr. Russell's latest production shows in a highly amusing way the contrast of the present day with that of the years gone by. The picture is full of the fastest kind of action and teems with thrills, speed and entertainment. "Down A Lot" is a great comedy that promises to give the audience the most laughs per minute of any thing you have seen for many a day.

AT THE MADISON

Today is the last time Zane Grey's popular story "The Call of the Canyon" will be shown at the Madison theater. "Maytime" the screen adaptation of Rida Johnson Young's most successful musical comedy will start Sunday. Here is a picture that is very unusual. It covers three generations of characters and unique because of the very talented characters and artistic work of the director in producing the play. It is a difficult matter to maintain the continuity intact where a narrative stretches across such gaps in the years. But in "Maytime" whatever breaks there are do not interfere with the development of the theme. Ethel Shannon and Harrison Ford are the leading characters. A two reel comedy makes the program complete.

The resignation of Miss Mabel C. Little, who for the past several years has been director of hall's and commons, has been accepted, according to a recent announcement at the Administration building. Miss Little tendered the resignation last Saturday. It is to take effect immediately.

The World of Music

By ADRIAN SCOLTEN.

PERHAPS there is no city in the U. S. where children are so well informed about things musical as the are in Madison. Several music memory contests more extensive and successful than given in any American city of its size, well conducted music performance contests, exceptionally fine instruction in the public and parochial schools of the city, much newspaper publicity, children's music performance concerts and children's musical societies combine to give the children of Madison a discriminating taste which the average university student might do well to equal.

The future of music in our country is to be determined by the rising generation and their appreciation and love for it. The child mind is open to beautiful impressions received through the stimulation of the imagination.

It is important that during the child period, the period which determines what the adult will be, that the child mind be exposed as much as possible to what is uplifting and inspirational.

Children who listen often to the best in music when they grow older will find that no other kind of music is ever quite so much the music for their souls. They will always remember the music they became familiar with during their early years and they will get unlimited enjoyment and satisfaction from it.

If good music has been an extensive influence in one's early education what is best in one's nature is drawn out. To make music more of an inspiration and help to the Madison children, concerts should not be attended so exclusively by adults.

It is true this year at least, that concerts in Madison have not been presented at practically no profit to any of the projectors. If there were much of a profit in concert presentation in this city, it might be possible to give free concerts for children.

In a center of education and culture, such as Madison is, something might be done in the projection of children's concerts which would be the forerunner of similar movements in other musical centers. Certain it is that unless Madison encourages her most worthy musical activities the cheaper amusements will take their place.

Programs such as those given by the best of talent, Tito Schipa, Werrenrath, the London String Quartette, Adthouse and Middleton, Anna Case, the Chicago and Minneapolis orchestra, Albert Salvi, Josef Lhevinne and others were fairly well attended by adults but how few children had the privilege of being present.

When it is necessary to guarantee to the artist a sum larger than the ticket sale brings in, when concerts are given for adults at seemingly high prices, how then can concerts be given for children at children's rates?

The All Star Concert Series will, however, in spite of deficits in past concerts, give reduced rates to children. This may not be a good move from a business standpoint but it may plant a seed, the fruit of which Madison will be justly proud. The love of good music planted in the heart of children will bear fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some 30 fold.

Physic Professors Work on Amplifiers

The work of arranging the amplifying apparatus to throw the sound of the music into the corridors of the building has kept the members of the physics department busy for several days during the early part of the week. Prof. Max Mason and Prof. C. M. Terry have been working on the project all week assisted by Malcolm P. Hanson and the university radio station staff. The appliances were loaned by the Taylor Electric company.

Europe Not Attacked From Without By 'Reds' But From Within By Profiteers ---H. G. Wells

from running. The ruin was already complete.

In this chaos the Bolsheviks grasped power according to all accepted revolutionary examples. There was not so much an organized resistance to their seizure as a lawless disregard. They had to shoot. All revolutions have to shoot. It is their privilege, their danger. But it is usually conceded that the Bolsheviks shot too much, went on shooting too long, acquired [illegible] the habit of shooting.

They Were Nervous

[illegible]

Europe Is Sick

pointed out, private capitalism is a totally unworkable system) spreads in a European community saturated with ideas of and eager for private gain, which, destitute of a sufficiently strong sense of collective good, enslaved by narrow, individualistic, partisan, patriotic obsessions, makes no effort sufficiently comprehensive or intelligent to arrest the decay. The European system is not being seriously attacked from without at the present times, least of all by communism. The whole communist propaganda in Western Europe does not amount to much more than the advertisement of the organization of a typewriter or patent medicine. But the European system is being attacked from within, by its own speculators, profit makers, tariffs, combines for the restraint or deflection of trade. It has taught all its children to be competitive, self seeking; it crumbles and collapses now for lack of creative effort.

I am not one of those who minimise or detract from the great achievements of the Nineteenth century. Deep in my nature is a carving for irresponsible liberty. Temperamentally, I dislike Communism. I am a collectivist, but not a communist. I have always clung, and still sling to the belief that the life in which I have grown up sprawling social and economic might be progressively organized into a secure, generous, scientific system without any abrupt, violent, destructive revolutionary change.

Collapse is Continuing

But I must confess to a deepening, increasing doubt whether the present European system can right itself. Collapse continues so steadily, so disconcertingly. The little nations sit within their boundaries scheming for small advantages, none heeding the general good. Germany follows Russia. Her enemies without, the big business of old within, have prepared another great area in which the communist may make his experiments. And the collapse shows no tending to end at the Rhine. Western exchanges totter. It may be that the hopes of such as I are excessive, that tinkering cannot save the European system now, that it is destined to profounder, more drastic changes than we are willing to admit as necessary. Perhaps the root is too rotten with self seeking. Perhaps the communist with all his faults, his wastefulness and ugliness of method, has something vital to teach the world, if it no more than discipline devoted subordination to large ideas. Perhaps the whole European system, like Russia, may after all need to be regrafted upon this new, strange root of communism before it enters upon a fresh creative phase. I do not know. But it is plain to me that the years pass and the recovery of Europe does not begin.

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of fashion and society. And the overfat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness; revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription and learn through it that they may safely reduce steadily and easily without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly, and quickly reaching their ideal of figure, with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe, fat reducer by giving to your druggist one dollar for a box or sending a like amount to the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets.—Adv.

Art Contest to Feature Thoma And Van Dyck

Rembrandt Also on Schedule for School Study During Week

By MARCELLA NEFF and HELEN BALDAUF
(School Page Editors)

The Art Appreciation Contest for the week will emphasize these pictures: For the 4th, 5th and 6th grades, 1. Charles I of England by Van Dyck. The original is now in the Paris-Louvre. 2. At the Lake of Garda by Thoma, now on display in the New York-Metropolitan. The 7th and 8th grade groups will study: 1. Portrait of the Artist by Rembrandt, now in the London-National Gallery. 2. The Pilots, by Brangwyn, on display in the Chicago Art Institute.

Van Dyck's Early Study

Van Dyck was born in Antwerp in 1599. He was the son of a prosperous silk merchant. At the early age of ten he began his studies. At sixteen, he was already working as an independent master with pupils of his own.

The Work of Rembrandt

Rembrandt, the son of a miller, was born in Leyden seven years after Van Dyck. He was sent to the Latin school, for his parents desired to fit him for one of the learned professions. They soon realized that hte boy was determined to draw, so they yielded to his wish and apprenticed him to a painter.

At 17 or 18 he returned to Leyden and began to work for himself along his own lines, sketching and painting everyone whom he could persuade to work for him, especially the members of his own family. Seven years later he moved to Amsterdam, where he spent the rest of his life. His popularity as a portrait painter brought him many commissions. By painting the "Anatomy Lesson" he became the leading painter in the city. Fortune smiled and frowned on him, but he painted with the conviction that his way was the right way. He left over 700 pictures upon his death.

Prosperous Van Dyck

Van Dyck seemed to live a charmed life with fortune always smiling on him. When 20 he became an assistant to the great Rubens. At 22 he went to Italy to paint, travel and study the Italian masters. He was immediately appointed court painter at 23, when he went to England. He left hundreds of paintings of the royal family and the nobility of England. He painted 38 portraits of Charles I alone during his term.

The Hundred Per cent Child

By ANGELO PATRI

EVERY parent and teacher is engaged in the pursuit of the hundred per cent child. If Sammie gets 98 in spelling the teacher looks at him sadly and asks: "Why didn't you get a hundred?" When he gets home his mother says: "Why didn't you get a hundred? I suppose Henry Puddingstone did, didn't he?"

It isn't confined to spelling or any other grade subject, though. The idea is that the real child, the best child, is a hundred per center. He never tells a lie; he never breaks a rule; he is never dirty; he is always all right.

Now, that would be perfectly all right if the hundred per cent was an ideal towards which every child was striving, with the aid and sympathy of his parents and teachers when he failed. Aid and sympathy based on the knowledge that neither parent nor teacher ever got a hundred per cent job done in his life, and that he never would nor could. Life holds no hundred per cents.

Instead of that, when a child fails, when, for instance, he does what every normal human being has done, lies to shield himself—his parents and teachers are horror stricken. They take the attitude that the world has sinned beyond redemption. They weep about it, scold about it, and nag about it until the child begins to feel that for him all hope is lost. Which is a very bad thing to make any child feel.

When he lies he is to be taken aside and steadily told that he has made a very silly mistake; that lies are stupid because they are so futile because there is in this world a law of God that never wavers from truth, and all the lies in the world fall down before it. Point out to him again and again the stupidity, the futility, the cheapness of lying until he understands that he is casting aside his birthright when he strays from the truth.

But don't weep and wring your hands and tell him nobody in the family ever did such a thing, and that he has disgraced the whole family and the school. The person hurt is imself, and he woudl not hurt himself if he understood. Teach him.—N. Y. Tribune.

Lincoln---From Boyhood to President

AND you little boy and littlegirl, down there in the grades, studying the life of Lincoln. What does it mean to you? It is sad, heroic, inspiring. You don't have to wait until you grow up to draw from the fountain of Lincoln. You can do it right now in your work down here.

LINCOLN LOVED BOOKS.

The real boy Lincoln was not he who slept in the loft of a log cabin through whose chinks the snow may sometimes have sifted. It was the boy who come home from a long day's work with glowing eyes, hugging to his heart a borrowed book. What mattered it to him if he must gather chips and shavings to keep the logs flaming, as long as he would have a light to read by. If he had a book to read, he would read it until sleep overtook the household. He then carried it up to bed, that at break of day it might be within his reach.

Lincoln Is a Study; Few People Get From Him All He Can Give, Declares George P. Hambrecht

By GEORGE P. HAMBRECHT
(State Director of Vocational Education)

THE acts and words of Lincoln are reviewed today by all good Americans as worthy of study and consideration. What is it that he has to give us most worth while in this period of distraction and disorganization which we are going through? We hear, people constantly asking, "What would Lincoln have done in our place?" This query is frequently raised to bolster up an argument on some economic theory, constantly backing up present day arguments from letters and speeches of Lincoln. He is quoted to support each side of many of the live issues of today, ranging from the temperance question to our entry into the League of Nations. There seems not to be a cause which does not try to strengthen itself through him.

This is a conscious tribute to the faith that people have in him. But many of us who quote him fail to get from him the real help he has to give. It is not his opinion on a particular subject, not his wit and wisdom as expressed in his letters and speeches which are his great contribution; it is from the temper with which he appoached his problems, the methods by which he handled them that we can learn most. His life is a call to self-training—a training of the mind until it can form sound workmanlike, trustworthy conclusion, training of the moral nature to justice and rightness—training of the will until it can be counted on to back up the conclusions of the mind and heart. It is a call to openness of mind, willingness to learn.

His method is a constant lesson in liberality towards others, to a recognition that there may be something to be said of the other man's point of view as well as of yours, that you no more see all the truth than he does, and that if what each of you see can be fused, a larger amount of truth will result. Above all, his method is a revelation of what a man can make out of himself if he will. Indeed, I am sometimes inclined to feel that the greatest service Lincoln has done this country was to demonstrate what could be made of a mind by passionate, persistent effort. What moral heights our nation would rise to if dealt with in perfect candor.

Lincoln was able to view every individual question in its relation to human welfare and human progress. Questions involving moral issues he always interpreted in easily understood terms. Even the complicated issues raised by the Slavery Question, culminating in those historic debates between Lincoln and Douglas, he interpreted as part of a great movement and not alone an isolated question. This is well illustrated in the summary of his debate with Douglas at Alton, Ill., when Lincoln said:

"This is the issue that will continue in this country when these poor tongues of Judge Douglas and myself shall be silent. It is the eternal struggle between these two principles—right and wrong—throughout the world. They are the two principles that have stood face to fae from the beginning of time and will ever continue to struggle. The one is the common right of humanity, the other the divine right of kings. It is the same spirit in whatever shape it develops itself. It is the same spirit that says, 'You toil and work and earn bread, and I'll eat it.' No matter in what shape it comes, whether from the mouth of a king who seeks to bestride the people of his own nation and live by the fruit of their labor or from one race of men as an apology for enslaving another race, it is the same tyrannical principle."

Taking him all in all, it is doubtful in this country or any country has produced a man so worthy of our studying and following as is Abraham Lincoln.

Recent Books For Children

Almost True Stories

Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co. are constantly publishing interesting and attractive books for the young. One that appeared recently is entitled, "Little Lucia and Her Puppy" written by Mabel L. Robinson, with whom most of the readers of Junior Home Magazine are undoubtedly familiar. It is designed for young children. A child in the second grade could read the book herself. It consists of a series of experiences which Lucia had with her puppy,—evidently a collie puppy. Being a collie puppy, it was, of course, very active, so that it did many things on done to it by Lucia and others. The its own accord and had many things description of these experiences would be interesting to any child who has ever had a puppy for a pet; and children who have not had one would certainly like to have one after reading this book. Like all of Miss Robinson's books, "Little Lucia and Her Puppy" is written in an attractive style, well adapted to the interest and comprehension of young children. Lessons of sympathy, devotion, and loyalty are taught incidentally in the book. There are half a dozen black and white pictures that help to illustrate the text and brighten the pages.

Antoher book from the press of Dutton & Comany is entitled "Plow Stories" writen by Clara D. Pierson. This is a book of interesting and instructive tales concerning pioneer life, in which the use of the plow plays an important part.

Robert Gordon Anderson, the author of the Seven-O'Clock Stories and Half-Past-Seven-O'Clock stories has written a new book of bedtime tales, this time for little older children, — Eight-O'Clock Stories The Toyman, who has already won a place for himself in the hearts of many little children, again plays an important part in this new story.

A book for boys who are interested in locomotives—and what boy is not — is "The Iron Horse" by George Clarence Hoskin. One knows from the very first page that the author knows all about railroad life and that to him the "puffing engine, screaming whistle, and clanging bell" are friendly greetings of his noble steed, the iron horse. The book is full of information that the average boy wants to know, and it is imparted in a readable way. In addition to vivid explanations of railroad signs and signals, there are interesting tales of unusual courage in the presence of danger. (Harper Brothers, $1.75.)

A New Health Book

The American Child Health Association has published a very clever little book of sixteen pages, entitled "A Parody Sport Book," which was written by Cliff Goldsmith, who is known in the Child Health Association as "Happy." He has managed to impress seven rules of health by humorous but at the same time effective, description of the way to play certain familiar sports. Adults as well as children would read The Parody Sport Book with a good deal of pleasure, and they would incidentally have a few of the fundamental rules of health impressed upon them. The illustrations are as clever as the text, which is saying a good deal.

Here's Story of How Valentine Custom Started 1200 Years Ago

Son of Nobility Who Became Monk Sent Girl a Token

"Aw, shucks, do I have to tell you I'm in love?" says a bashful little boy to an expectant little girl, but all on an adorable, lacy, frilly, heart-shaped bit of red cardboard.

Have you ever wondered just how the custom of exchanging anonymous love tokens originated? Listen, my children, and you shall hear!

Twelve hundred and fifteen years ago in Rome it was the custom for the sons of the nobility to become monks. A certain son, Valentine by name, had given up all claims to his father's wealth early in youth, and had joined a band of traveling priests in order to preach God's gospel.

Meets a Lady Love

One day, which happened to be on Feb. 14, he and his band stopped at one of the feudal estates to seek food and lodging. There chanced to be a great feast celebrating the birthday of the daughter of the lord. When he was introduced, Valentine was spellbound with her beauty. He commanded one of his band to "Go and bring forth the most beautiful thing in all the land, so that it might be placed beside her feasting platter."

The First Present

The messenger returned with a most perfect white rose. To her appeals to know whom the donor might be, his lips were sealed, for he had denounced all worldly things when he had given his life to God. Each year upon this day, he sent some token—a book, a verse, a rare bit of lace, a miniature cast of a blood-red heart to this maiden, but always anonymously.

Valentine, the Heart Healer

His love for this lady brought to his notice the general condition of all youth at the time. He sought to be a patron saint and conselor to all lovers, going about on errands of love, seeking to mend broken hearts and deliver soothing billets doux. Valentine dedicated his life trying to remedy the loveless marriages and griefs of the young, so common in the feudal age when maidens were pledged to marry when mere children.

And Today—

From the gifts of Valentine to his love we have derived our own tokens of lace and verse, flowers, and heart shaped fancies. From his leather pouch in which he carried about the love letters he secretly delivered, we have derived our grab bag custom.

Sand Table Tells Story at Emerson School

Lessons in drawing and literature are clearly demonstrated on the fifth graders sand table in Emerson school. The Story of "The Three Billy Goat' Gruff" was read in class this week and in the drawing classes tiny model goat were made by the children of modeling clay. One little boy made a bridge. And now the sand table shows a bridge over a river and the goats in the act of crossing.

Randall Junior High Has Valentine Party

On Valentine's day, Elizabeth Doll, Kathryn Wiedner, Alice Lounsburg and Mildred Webb will give a Valentine's party for Randall Junior high from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. Dancing and games will be held. Light refreshments will be served. Costumes may or may not be worn. The admission is 10 cents.

Emerson Seventh Grade League Names Head

The Emerson seventh grade junior civics league elected Robert Bill president at the first meeting of the semester. Alice Badeau was elected vice-president, Frances Hoffman, secretary and Charles Poole the delegate.

For Swollen Joints

Most remedies fail but Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's for joint troubles only, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine—whether rheumatic or not.

It limbers up stiff, inflamed, painful, creaky joints so quickly you'll be astonished.

Two seconds' rubbing and away it goes through skin and flesh right down to the bone and ligaments—that's why it succeeds. Ask any reliable druggist.—Adv.

Looen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Other Folks' Schools

That the kindergarten should be the first school grade and not a separate unit will be emphasized at the meeting of the International Kindergarten Union to be held in Minneapolis in May.

Every school except five in Robertson-co., Tennessee, has a library.

To encourage the study of foreign language by Londoners, money prizes for proficiency in certain languages are offered by banks and other organizations interested in foreign trade.

The decorations, too, are admitted to be more attractive than ever before. More effort was devoted to them this year and because the new garage lends itself admirably to the decorative effects.

The auto show this year is being made more than merely a show place where new cars and new features are placed out for public inspection. This year's exposition is being made more of a clearing house of automobile and accessory information. Automobile representatives have not only their sales forces at the show but many of them have their expert mechanicians on the floor for the purpose of dispensing automobile information. Conferences with dealers and mechanicians are more in evidence at this year's show than in any previous year. The show takes on the appearance of the big city show.

A MILLION German children are rapidly approaching starvation.

Millions more are undernourished and without adequate clothing for warmth. Babies are without swaddling clothes. Many are placed in orphan asylums at birth. Conditions are not improving. Whoever is responsible. These children are innocent. The direct need is among the younger children, many born since the war.

This drive is part of the nation-wide effort headed by Maj. Gen. Allen, formerly commander of the American forces on the Rhine. In accepting the chairmanship of the campaign to feed 2,000,000 German children, Gen. Henry T. Allen has given authoritative sanction to a work both worthy and humane. No one knows this better than Gen. Allen, who has lived among these people and seen their struggles to ward off destitution and want.

All funds are spent in America, transportation of goods is furnished free by the North German Lloyd and American Quakers are in charge of the relief work.

Mother Trudges Thousand Miles To Her Sick Son

Mrs. Mary Hansen

DETROIT, Mich. — Kipling must have had a mother like Mrs. Marry Hanson in mind when he wrote "Mother O' Mine."

When the aged woman learned of the serious illness of her son in Detroit, she was in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., without funds to come to him by rail. Not daunted, she set on foot to traverse the 1,000 miles. With the aid of lifts tendered by sympathetic motorists she arrived here two weeks after she started. Now she is at her son's bedside, helping him fight his way back to health.

This is not the first time Mrs. Hansen has undertaken such a journey for her son. When he was in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., she made her way from Montana to Washington, largely on foot, to lay an appeal for his liberation before the President. The boy was freed later.

Mrs. M. Skelly, Pioneer Here, Dies On Friday

Passes Away at Age of 88; Was Resident Here Since 1861

Mrs. Mary Skelly, 88, one of the oldest residents of Madison, died at her home, 120 S. Broom st., Friday afternoon after a short illness. Mrs. Skelly came to Madison in 1861 when 1? years old and has lived here since with the exception of a short time spent in Wheeling, W. Virginia. When she arrived here, the capital city was a struggling village of muddy roads and one story stores and the activities of its citizens were centered in the soldiers drilling at Camp Randall in preparation for the battles of the Civil War.

MRS. SKELLY

For many years she was employed in the home of David Atwood, then publisher of the Wisconsin State Journal, who lived on Monona ave., where the Beaver building now stands. She then moved to her new home at 337 W. Main st., where she lived for 18 years with her grandchildren, who were attending school in Madison. Seven years ago, she purchased the large home built by James C. Brader at the corner of W. Doty and S. Bassett sts., where she has resided since.

She is survived by one son, John Skelly, Madison, and eight grandchildren, Joseph, Margaret, Leo, George, Louis, Genevieve, Geraldine and Robert. Funeral services will be held from St. Raphael's church, Monday morning, at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at St. Mary's cemetery, Oregon, Wis.

Council Delays Vote On Salary Increase; Hall Site Plan Dead

Mayor's Veto On Hall Site Put on File; Company Withdraws Offer

COUNCIL ACTION.

1.—Voted to extend time limit for paying taxes to Mar. 1.

2.—Took no definite action on alderman salary increase.

3.—Mayor's veto on purchase of Hausmann site for city hall placed on file. Company withdrew its offer to sell property.

4. Voted $600 for city's share of increases in salaries of county probation officials.

5.—Struck out smoke inspector salary pending another examination.

6.—Referred matter of selecting a site for West Side high school by April 1 to board of education.

7.—Instructed city attorney to appeal from decision of appraisal which assessed valuation of McCauley farm land sought by city for sewage disposal plant site.

8.—City clerk instructed to seek bids on construction of a new contagious hospital.

THE ROLL CALLS

The roll call on amending the salary ordinance striking out the increase of $300 a year for the aldermen follows:

For: Ald. Barry, Behrend, Breitenbach, Dowling, Oakey, Park, Ross, Starr, Steffen, Woodward—10.

Against: Ald. Brown, Clarke, Elver, Fessler, Proctor, Quinn, Rhode, Sullivan, Trachte—9.

Absent: Ald. McGowan—1.

The vote on leaving the salary at $600 a year as recommended by the finance committee in the salary ordinance report, was:

For: Ald. Brown, Clarke, Elver, Fessler, Proctor, Quinn, Rhode, Steffen, Sullivan, Trachte—10.

Against: Ald. Barry, Behrend, Breitenbach, Dowling, Oakey, Park, Ross, Starr, Woodward—9.

Absent: McGowan—1.

THE TIME limit for paying city taxes, including the 1922 state income tax, was extended from Feb. 15 to Mar. 1 by the common council Friday night. The vote was unanimous.

Before the extension was authorized, a fight was staged to extend the time only to Feb. 25. Ald. J. H. Brown made the motion but it was killed by a 13 to 6 vote. Ald. Breitenbach, Brown, Clarke, Park, Proctor and Ross casting their ballots in favor of the shorter extension of time.

Ald. Patrick H. Barry led the fight to extend the limit to Mar. 1. The council followed up this action by authorizing Carl Moe, city treasurer, to add another man to his staff to complete the work of auditing the tax receipts.

No Action On Salaries

A spirited clash over increasing the salary of council members from $300 to $600 a year resulted in no action at all being taken on the fixing of salaries of city officials for the coming year. The statute provides that salaries for the coming year be set at the regular meeting in February, the second Friday.

Opposition to the increase was led by Ald. Barry, who rallied around him a sufficient number of aldermen to defeat the measure. A three-fourths vote of the council was necessary to pass it but those in favor of the additional stipend numbered only 10, with 9 against and one absent.

Ald. Joseph H. Brown, speaking in favor of the increase, said that he believed the ordinance should be adopted to permit men whose time was valuable to hold office.

"I would hesitate to make a law which would prevent workingmen from holding office," Ald. Brown said. "There has been a time when salaried men were in the council. Look at the council today and draw your own conclusions."

"When we ran for this office we knew there would be a great deal of grief and small compensation for our efforts," Ald. Barry said in denouncing the attempt to increase the salary.

Ald. Barry moved that the aldermanic salary question be taken up at a later date but no action was taken although it was understood at the close of the meeting that a reconsideration would be asked at the adjourned meeting Feb. 21.

Accept Mayor's Veto

The matter of the purchase of the Hausmann property as a site for a new city hall was laid to rest with appropriate ceremonies.

The council members in theory, though not in reality, bowed their heads while Mayor I. M. Kittleson's veto of the purchase resolution was read and placed on file, and they offered not the slightest objection. A communication from the board of directors of the Association of Commerce was read, asking that the matter of the purchase of a city hall site be given more study by the city plan commission before any definite action was taken again on the matter.

SITE OFFER WITHDRAWN

The offer of the State Street Realty Co., owners of the Hausmann property to sell the land was withdrawn. A letter to this effect was received by the council from Milo C. Hagan, an officer of the company.

ht city engineer, on member of the

A request that a standing committee, consisting of the mayor, the city engineer, one member of the council and four citizens to study and recommend sites for a new city hall, was voted down. It was introduced by Ald. G. J. Fessler. Ald. J. H. Brown, opposing it, said he believed the city hall site matter should "be buried."

The proposed increase in the salary of a smoke inspector was stricken from the salary ordinance pending anoth... examination of candidates by the police and fire commission. Provision was made in the ordinance that the amount be increased from $1,500 to $2,500.

Council Grants Raises

The council voted to concur in the resolution of the county board increasing the salary of the county probation officer to $1,800 a year and his assistant $1,500 a year. The council appropriation totaled $600, part of which will go toward the city's share of the increase in salaries and about $600 for the salary of a half time clerk.

The measure was unanimously adopted following a plea from Mrs. Edith Hoyt, representing the Dane County League of Women Voters, who pointed to the excellent work done through this office in the past six years. Mrs. Hoyt told the council that about 75 per cent of the delinquents turned over to the probation department are saved the stigma of a prison sentence and from their first mist... are saved from a downward path. The department also received about three-fourths of the total requests for mothers' pensions from Madison, and 90 percent of the probation work from the city also.

File Company's Request

The request of the Madison Street Railway Co., that it be relieved from paying the entire cost of grading work on the track zone on E. Johnson St., was placed on file. The company claims that under the agreement with the city relieving it of all permanent paving costs, except one-fourth the cost on include the grading work on such streets having a track zone, should streets.

A public hearing was announced for the Feb. 21 meeting on the proposed change to the zoning ordinance on the Kennedy Dairy Co., property at University ave., and Hawthorne court.

A sum of $500 was voted to pay for the proposed inventory of city property. The work is the first of this nature done here for five years. E. F. Bunn, city auditor, will have charge.

Seek Bids on Hospital

City Clerk Harry C. Buser was instructed to advertise for bids for the construction of a new contagious hospital. A bond issue of $175,000 has been provided, $150,000 to be spent on the building and $25,000 for equipment.

The resolution asking definite settlement on the option of the school board on the Lawrence Carpenter site near the cemetery on Regent st., was referred to the board of education for further consideration. The option now held will expire Apr. 1. The owner has stated that the price specified two years ago as $35,000 is not sufficient at this time and will not be renewed.

A contract with the Scherer band providing concerts for a three year period at $80 a concert with 20 pieces and a director was adopted. The contract specifies 15 concerts a season.

The men were looking very uncomfortable. The women were gazing at their hostess with round apologetic eyes. Mrs. de Lacey, the youngest and prettiest of the married women, had clasped her hands as if worshiping at a shrine.

"It seems too terrible when we look back upon it!" she exclaimed, and she infused her tones with the tragic ring of truth, "dear Madame Zattiany, that for even a little while we thought the most awful things about you. We'd heard of the wonderful things surgeons had done to mutilated faces during the war, and we were sure that some one of them had taken one of your old photographs—how could we even guess the truth? How you must have hated us!"

"How could I hate you?" Madame Zattiany smiled charmingly. "I had not the faintest idea you were discussing me."

"But why—why—did you shut yourself up so long after you came when you must have known how mother and all your old friends longed to see you again?"

"I was tired and resting." She frowned slightly. Such a question was a distinct liberty and she had never either taken or permitted liberties. But she banished the frown and met her tormentor's eyes blandly. She had no intention of losing her poise for a moment.

"Ah! I said it!" cried Mrs. de Lacey. "I knew it was not because you felt a natural hesitation in showing yourself. To me you seem brave enough for anything, but it must have taken a lot of courage."

"Courage?"

"Why, yes! Fancy—well, you see, I'm such a coward about what people say—especially if I thought they'd laugh at me—that if I'd done it I should have run off and hidden somewhere."

"Then what object in invoking the aid of science to defeat nature at one more point? And I can assure you, dear Mrs. de Lacey, that when you are fifty-eight, if you have not developed courage to face the world on every count it will merely be because you have indulged too frequently in unbridled passions."

"Mrs. De Lacey burst into laughter. . . . 'What—what will the poor girls do?'"

"Ah—yes—but you didn't have any qualms at all?"

"Certainly not. I confess I am surprised at your rather strained view of what is really a very simple matter."

"Simple? Why, it's the most extraordinary thing that ever happened."

"The world is equally astonished—and resentful—at every new discovery, but in a short time accepts it as a commonplace. The layman resents all new ideas, but the adjustment of the human mind to the inevitable is common even among savages." Her slight affectation of pedantry was very well done and Clavering could not detect the flicker of a lash as her eyes rested indulgently upon her tormentor.

"Well, I don't see what that has to do with it. Anyhow, it must make you feel terribly isolated."

Madame Zattiany shrugged her shoulders. She could make this common gesture foreign, and her accent was a trifle more marked as she answered, "Here, possibly, but not in Europe, where the treatment has been known and practiced for several years. It may interest you to hear that only yesterday I had a letter from a friend in Vienna telling me that an elderly countess, a great beauty some forty years ago, had announced triumphantly that once more men were following her on the street."

Mrs. de Lacey burst into a peal of girlish laughter. "Pardon me, dear Madame Zattiany. We are used to it in your case, now that we have got over the shock, but it does seem too funny. And Europe almost maaless. What—what will the poor girls do?"

"Scratch their eyes out," said Clavering, who could contain himself no longer.

Mrs. de Lacey made no attempt to conceal the wicked sparkle in her eyes as she turned to him. "How crude! I suppose it was you who set those dreadful newspapers on poor Madame Zattiany." She turned back to her hostess. "That has been a shocking ordeal for you. You know how we always avoid that sort of thing. We've felt for you—I wanted to come and tell you—you don't mind my telling you now?"

"Your sympathy is very sweet. But I really have enjoyed it! You see, my dear child, when one has lived as long as I have, a new sensation is something to be grateful for."

"Oh, but——" Mrs. de Lacey's bright eyes were now charged with ingenuous curiosity. "You don't really mean—we've had the most furious arguments—couldn't you fall in love again? I don't mean like silly old women with boys, but really—like a young woman? Please let me have my little triumph. I've sworn you could. And then the poor men——"

"Upon my word!" Madame Zattiany laughed outright. "This has gone far enough. I refuse to be the exclusive topic of conversation any longer. I am immensely flattered, but you are making me feel the rude hostess." And this time she turned with an air of finality to the apologetic, almost purple, man at her side and asked him to continue to enlighten her on municipal politics.

One or two women shrugged their shoulders. A few looked crestfallen, others, like Marian Lawrence, malignant. She had marched off with the flag, no use blinking the fact, and it had been small satisfaction to make her admit what she had already told the world. The "rubbing in" had evidently missed its mark. And the men, instead of looking cheap, were either infuriated or disgusted. Only Clavering, who managed to look bored and remote, was attending strictly to his salad.

One thing more they could do, however, and that was to make the dinner a failure. They barely replied to the efforts of the men to "make things go" and gloom settled over the table. Madame Zattiany continued to talk with placidity or animation to the men beside her, and Clavering started a running fire with Anne Goodrich, who, almost as angry as himself, loyally helped him, on censorship, the latest books and plays, even the situation in Washington and they continued their painful efforts until the signal was given to leave the table.

XXXVIII

The men did not linger in the dining-room. The women, protesting that they were later than usual for the opera, left immediately after they returned to the drawing-room. There was a cool insolence in their "good-byes" and there was no doubt that they meant them to be final. Only Anne Goodrich shook the imperturbable hostess' hand warmly and asked if she might come some day to tea.

The husbands perforce went with their wives, after farewells that sounded more like au revoirs, and so did the younger men, except Clavering and Harry Vane. Clavering planted himself on the hearthrug, and Vane, scowling at him, lingered uncertainly.

He plunged his hands into his pockets, and, very red, stood in front of Madame Zattiany, who was leaning back in her chair and fanning herself leisurely. "I feel like apologizing for those beastly women," he blurted out.

"Apologize?" Madame Zattiany raised her eyebrows.

"Yes. Can't you see they came here tonight with the deliberate intention of making New York too hot to hold you? So that you'd clear out? They'd made up their minds that you'd changed yours about returning to Europe. They hate you. They're used to being jealous of one another, but this has knocked them silly and they can't get used to it. It's—it's—oh, it's too awful! I almost died of shame."

"I really do not understand. Do you mean to tell me they meant to be rude? I thought they were rather naive and charming."

"Damned hypocrites. They hoped to make you simply expire with embarrassment. But you were splendid. They must feel like naughty children that have been stood in a corner."

Madame Zattiany laughed. "Then I have unwittingly been playing my part in a little comedy. How stupid they must have thought me! But I really hope for their sakes that you are mistaken." She rose and held out her hand. "I am going to ask you to excuse me, Mr. Vane. I have a small commission for Mr. Clavering, who has kindly waited. And I am very tired."

Vane's face fell and he looked resentfully at Clavering, in whom he instantly recognized a rival. But there was nothing to do but go and he went.

When Madame Zattiany heard the front door close she told the footman on duty in the hall to put out the lights and go to bed.

Then she walked down the room to the library door. "Will you put out these lights?" she asked Clavering. "I believe we still have a fire in here."

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

(Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CARPET

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had in her kitchen three strips of carpet, laid down over the oilcloth on the floor. One piece was in front of the sink, one strip was in front of the gas stove and the third length was in front of the cellar door.

"Why do you have those strips of carpet on your kitchen?" asked Uncle Wiggily one day. The rabbit gentleman caught his paw in the strip near the gas stove and almost fell down.

"I put the carpet down on the oilcloth to keep it clean," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It is easier to pick up a strip of carpet and shake it than it is to wash the whole oilcloth. And, speaking of that carpet, Uncle Wiggily, I wish you would shake it for me."

"Shake the strips of carpet in the kitchen do you mean?" asked the bunny.

"Yes," replied the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"All three of them?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"All three of them!" laughed Nurse Jane. "It will take you only a few minutes. Take up first the piece by the sink and shake that out the back stoop. Then lay the strip back in place again. Do the same with the strips near the gas stove and cellar door."

"All right," agreed Uncle Wiggily with a cheerful twinkle of his pink nose.

Now, while Mr. Longears was getting ready to shake the dust out of the carpet strips for Nurse Jane, outside his bungalow the Fox, the Wolf and the Bear were planning how they might catch the bunny rabbit gentleman. They wanted to nibble his ears.

"I'll tell you what let's do," growled the Fox. "We'll take turns trying to catch that rabbit. I'll go first. I'll go up the back stoop and knock at the door. Uncle Wiggily will open it thinking it's the delivery dog from the grocery store. I'll jump in and catch him as soon as he opens the door, and then I'll bring him to you."

"Good!" growled the Bear. "Then we'll nibble his ears!"

"And if you can't catch him, Mr. Fox," said the Wolf, "it will be my turn."

"And mine after yours," said the Bear to the Wolf.

So the three bad chaps stood hiding in the bushes outside of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Please get off!" begged Uncle Wiggily.

By this time the rabbit gentleman was ready to shake the first piece of carpet — the one by the sink. Rolling it up into a little bundle, the rabbit gentleman carried the carpet to the back door. Stepping out on the stoop the bunny took hold of one end of the carpet in his paws, ready to give it a hard shake.

But, just as he was doing this, out from the bushes bounded the Fox, running straight at Uncle Wiggily.

"Now I have you!" howled the Fox.

But Uncle Wiggily shook the length of the carpet so hard that it snapped, cracked and boomed like a gun—"Bang!"

"Oh, I'm shot! I'm shot!" howled the Fox, really thinking he was. "Oh Uncle Wiggily shot me!"

"And, without waiting to see whether or not he really was shot (and he wasn't at all) away ran the Fox over the fields.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he hurried back into the bungalow with the first length of carpet he had shaken. "I fooled the Fox all right!"

Then, thinking there were no more bad chaps out there, the bunny rabbit took the second length of carpet from in front of the gas stove and stepped on the back porch to shake the dust out.

This time the Wolf, having seen the Fox run away, stepped out from behind the bush saying:

"Now it is my turn to catch that bunny!"

But just as the Wolf was going to grab the rabbit, Uncle Wiggily gave the second piece of carpet a hard shake. It was very dusty and a lot of the dust flew up the Wolf's nose.

"Ker choo! Ker zoo! Ker foo!" sneezed the Wolf. He sneezed himself into a back somersault, falling off the stoop and bumping his nose.

"Oh I'm killed! I'm killed!" howled the Wolf and away he ran.

"Ha! Ha! I fooled two of the bad animals!" laughed the bunny as he went in the bungalow with the second piece of carpet.

There was one more strip left but the Bear said:

"I'm not going to wait for that rabbit to come out! I'm going in after him!" Into the bungalow went the bad chap. The rabbit was just going to take up the third strip of carpet, by the cellar door, when the Bear stepped on the length of carpet.

"Please get off!" begged Uncle Wiggily.

"No!" growled the Bear.

"Then I must make you!" said the rabbit. So he gave the carpet a sudden yank, pulling the Bear's hind legs from beneath him. Down the cellar stairs fell the Bear, all the way to the bottom, bumpty, bumpty bump.

"Oh I'm blown out of a cannon!" howled the Bear. "Oh, my poor bones! Oh dear!" And out of a cellar window he crawled and away he ran.

Then Uncle Wiggily laughed and shook the last piece of carpet and all was well.

But if the feather duster doesn't fly over the chimney top and tickle it so it sneezes, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the ice cream.

The Tenth Year

CHAPTER XXIV

The spaghetti party——"Pagan Revel," Mamie referred to it later, grandly—turned out to be all they had expected and more. There was quite a crowd present. Trent brought four or five young men. Three or four couples from the neighborhood were there. Two of Fred's younger associates at the office came, bringing their wives. Evelyn and Mamie had rounded up six or seven young women.

Trent dominated the occasion. Evelyn forgot all of her troubles as she laughed at his antics. Fred grinned and kept glancing at Evelyn with pleasure. She was more amenable toward him in her glances than she had been in days. He hoped she would make the first move toward reconciliation.

Mamie participated but little in the merriment. She was busy in the kitchen, in the dining room, everywhere. Evelyn, in the role of hostess was vastly pleased. She found herself imagining that she was receiving a vast throng in a mansion.

An exotic, seductive effect was achieved by the use of red hangings and red lights throughout. This color scheme occasioned a remark that sent the party into ecstatic screams. Two newspaper men, lured by promises of something to drink by Trent, arrived a little after eleven. When one suddenly became aware of the flood of red light, he stopped and whispered loudly to his companion.

"I knew this'd come. You've dragged me down to Hell at last!"

The revelers were in a mood to laugh at anything and they did.

They danced until nearly twelve, with pauses for sessions at a punch bowl. Mamie had brought in another phonograph for the evening, and two instruments were kept going constantly, often with different tunes.

Evelyn found herself beside Mrs. Lang, one of her neighbors, a young woman of faun-like build and black hair. She felt as if she had discovered in her a boon companion. She had not known her very well until now. Mrs. Lang was ready to trade tid-bit for tid-bit, and she did.

"Do you play bridge," Mrs. Lang asked after a while.

Evelyn smiled. "Not very well" she smiled.

"Oh, none of us are sharks," her companion went on.

"But you must come to my bridge party next Thursday. I'll have about four tables. Will you?"

Evelyn accepted. She was immensely pleased with the invitation. She hoped to find at Mrs. Lang's house more women she would cultivate. Perhaps—. Her dream world was carrying her on and on.

Trent strode up as they were talking.

He blatted out so all could hear. "Isn't polite to hide away in the corner like that and talk about people. What's her name? Whenever you see two women whispering to each other all you need to do is try to guess the name of the woman they are talking about."

They laughed!

Bang! Bang! Bang! Mamie entered beating a dishpan.

"Spaghetti!" she cried.

The crowd filed into the dining room, jamming it.

Mamie smiled when she glanced at Fred and Evelyn. They were arm in arm.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle Ray

GAME OF THE GROWN FOLKS.

The "OLDER FOLKS" in castles, as well as the children, had games to play. Some men liked "dice-throwing" best. They would play for money. It is said they would even gamble away "the clothes on their backs."

When men gamble they often lose their sense of honesty. "Loaded" dice were widely used during the Middle Ages. One peddlar's song was:

"I sell them heavy, I sell them light,
"Oh, buy my dice!"

Many games of cards were in use. People also cheated with them. The main way was to mark certain cards or to have extra ones to slip into the hand.

Every once in a while, kings or bishops tried to put an end to gambling with dice or cards. Their orders may have cut down the gambling a trifle, but it was not stopped by any means.

Greatest of all games was chess. We do not know just when this game was invented. It was probably first played in India. The people of the Land of Two Rivers (Babylonia) also knew the fun of chess playing.

During the Middle Ages, there was hardly a castle in which chess was not played. King and church tried to keep it down but their efforts were vain.

Chess is far above any other indoor game I know about. I hope that some day you will learn to play it. It is matching brain against brain. Once you know it well, you will enjoy every moment you play.

The French began to play chess more than a thousand years ago.

When French, English and German knights went to the Crusades many of them took along sets of chess. When not fighting the Saracens, they were likely to be found playing chess in their tents. The Saracens, on their part, were just as fond of the game. Thus enemies played at the same thing at the same time!

Chess might be called a "game of war." Each side has two knights, two bishops, two castles, a king and a queen. The queen has more power than any other two pieces put together. She is a strong guard for the king, and does much to keep him from being cornered. On each side are eight pawns or "foot-soldiers."

NEXT—A POET WHO NEARLY LOST HIS HEAD.

This picture was made during the Middle Ages. It shows a game of chess between a man and a woman. The artist put only half the proper number of squares on the board.

It will be a wild night at Turner hall this Wednesday night. John Kilonis will meet Joe Parelli the Italian. Now don't think for a minute that you can get a Greek and an Italian on the mat liking each other. Kilonis goes nutty on the mat. I for one don't care so much for that stuff. He pulls, he bites and goes around there like a mad man. A lot like it. I for one don't Kilonis can throw the world at his weight if he will just pay attention to wrestling. He is the best in the game today, don't forget it for a minute. If he will cut out the rough stuff and wrestle. In Chicago in his last match he chased chased the referee out of the ring and chased him down the aisles throwing the place into a near riot. No doubt he and Parelli will make a rough night of it.

I received a written letter you all saw who read this column signed (A. U. W.) which said Eastside in the University High game lost a star player by the rankest decision ever given out by a referee. I am looking into this thing and will print an answer Monday . In fairness to all this column wants the truth published and will sure get it in here Monday and I will find out if this player should or should not have been removed from the game. The game of basketball is a hard game in all its branches. It should be played hard but above all clean.

Auby Ehrman and Pete Reif sure gave the Madison bowlers something to talk about. The bowlers should give both fellows a lot of credit and don't forget to shake their hand plenty; they did wonderful work.

Stan Castle threw his ball in the lake where they were cutting ice and has now decided that he will yell out for a while back of that counter fry two, ham and eggs, buttered toast, and cut bowling for a while.

All Three Local High School Cage Teams Are Defeated Friday Night

Using all the abaility they possessed, Coach Finley's La Crosse high schol basketeers nosed out the Wisconsin Preps at the university gym Friday night, the final score being 18 to 16. The game was closely contested, first one team getting the lead and then the other popping from the rear to lead. The playing of the local five was the hardest they have shown this season but it was not enough. In caging field goals, Captain George Nelson, injured Badger Prep player, took high honors, making four goals and a free throw. Nelson was the best man on the floor but his playing was not like the style that the fans were used to seeing from the speedy forward. The playing of Miller was good but he ranked behind the Prep stellar player. The loss of Weigent, star and guard on the La Crosse fire for the last three years, was greatly felt as his teammates proceeded with the tilt. Weigent was disqualified from the team because of the nine semester rule, which bars a man in high school athletics if he has attended the school for nine periods.

In the second period of the fray, the Dearmen held Coach Finley's five scoreless while they themselves made three points at the help of Dawson and Olwell, the score being 9 to 8 at the half with the Wisconsin high representatives on the top. At the end of the third quarter, Kemper and Miller were the only men who marked up points for the La X five while Nelson scored three, the count being 12 all. The last period of the game was the fastest quarter of the four, both quintets striving to get the lead and the La Crosse team finally obtaining this position. At a time in the last quarter, the visitors led the Preps 12 to 16 but the losers came back but could only make two goals to their opponents one, the game ending with the La Crosse cagers on the long end of a 18 to 16 score.

About 300 rooters witnessed the game. The W'sconsin high band entertained berore the game and at the half.

Indiana Quintet Trims Northwestern By 30-13

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.— Playing their first game without the services of Nyikos, who at the time of his withdrawal from school was the leading scorer in the western conference, Indiana had little difficulty in winning from Northwestern here Friday night. The final score was 30 to 13.

(Special to the Capital Times)
RACINE, Wis. — The Madison Central high school basketball quintet was humbled for the first time this season at the hands of the Racine caging quintet here Friday night in a two overtime period game, the Capital five being nosed out 30 to 28.

24-24 at Close

The count at the end of the regular game was 24 all and at the first overtime period, both teams again tied with 2 all. Rose and Stupeckey were the cause of the Madison team's defeat. The dribbling of Rose was pretty but the losers had the Lake Shore quint outclassed in actual team work. Only several shots were tried from beneath the goal during the game, the Cox machine failing to break through the exceptionally strong defensive net of the Madison team.

In the last overtime period, Rose and Stupeckey were the men that scored the four points that put the visitors in the train, Sanders getting one goal. The last goal was made only a few seconds before the final whistle had sounded, the breaks being with the locals.

The game was rough throughout, many fouls being called and many points being made from personals.

Case Carried Out

Case, captain of the Racine five was carried from the floor a few minutes before the first tie game had ended. The leader received a wrenched knee and was unable to go on with the game. The long shooting of Rose was a spectacular feature of the fray, the little guard having Lady Luck on his side in the majority of shots. Rose caged six goals while Stupeckey made five.

Sander of the Madison five ran up 12 points for his five and played a remarkably good game. The playing of the Madison caging five was very good but as the luck was in the favor of the winning team, the visitors were practically helpless when it came to making easy shots.

Iowa-Ohio Net Teams Battle Again Tonight

Coach Barry's Team Improves; Drill on Defense

IOWA CITY, Iawa.—Facing the Ohio State team with the same lineup which has been working together for two weeks, the University of Iowa basketball five will play their fifth conference game at Iowa City on Saturday. Coach Sam Barry has been pointing his men to break the losing streak of three consecutive games.

Improvement in all-around play has been shown by the three veterans and two green men who make up the latest Hawkeye combination. Jensen of Cedar Rapids, center, and Duhm of Sterling, Ill., runnig guard are doing all they can and indications are that their performances will be much more satisfactory than they were a wek ago.

Pucksters to Meet Janesville Here Today

Badger puck chasers, thus far this season a team of ups and downs, will resume competition this afternoon at Janesville, Wis. when they meet the Y. M. C. A. team from down state in the first match ever played between the two teams.

Because the Janesville team plays few outside games, little is known of their strength, but reports have it that a fast game will result when the two teams clash.

Coach Blodgett will be without the services of at least two or three men and possibly more when his boys take the rink against the downstaters. Several of his men went to their homes when exams were finished, and will not be able to return in time for the meet. Under those circumstances, Blodgett does not know yet what lineup he will present to the Janesville team.

The second of the series between the two teams will be played on the lower campus rink here either Tuesday or Wednesday. The game has been decided upon, but the two teams cannot agree on the day.

Should the teams split the two games, there is a probability that the tie will be played off later in the season.

After Janesville, Wisconsin's next competition will be with Michigan here. The Badgers dropped their first game to Michigan last month, but in the second they played the Maize and Blue to a standstill. After battling for three extra periods, the coaches of the two teams agreed to call the game a tie.

Marquette Loses 28-17 to Creighton Quintet

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Displaying excellent floor work and a neat passing game, the Creighton university basketball team of Omaha, Neb., defeated Marquette university here last night 28 to 17. The western quinet got the jump at the start and led at the half, 14 to 5. Mahoney and Capain Lovley played exceptionally well for Creighton while Red Dunn's floor work was the Marquette feature.

Kieckhefer-Moore Split In Three Cushion Series

NEW YORK.—George Moore, of this city, and Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, broke even in two three-cushion games here on Friday. Moore winning the first game, 50 to 44, in fifty-eight innigns, and Kieckhefer taking the second contest, 50 to 35, in fifty-eight innings.

Billy Defoe and Valgar Meet In N. Y. Tonight

NEW YORK—Benny Valgar, a 130 pound title aspirant, and Billy Defoe of St. Paul, Minn., meet tonight in a 10 round match for the third time in a year. Neither boxer displayed a marked superiority of skill in their other engagements.

Several Fast Men Become Eligible For Competition; Season Starts Soon

The sway of the ineligibility sickle, said to be so death-dealing in its tendencies with the varsity track team, was compassionate at the end of the semester and the aftermath still leaves a hopeful array of cinder men eligible for spring competition.

The end of the semester also brought forth several men who have just completed their year's residence requirement who will be eligible for the varsity team this spring.

A single week of preparation will be given the varsity squad before its first competitive performance of the season. On February 16, the squad journeys to Evanston, to compete in a quadrangular meet. Ohio, Northwestern, Chicago and Wisconsin will be entered

One week after the conference meet, the Wisconsin relay carnival will be held in the annex here. Prep schools from throughout this district, as well as normal school relay teams from Wisconsin will be entertained in Madison during the weekend.

The schedule for the indoor season follows: February 16, Quadrangular meet at Evanston; February 23, Iowa, here; March 1, Illinois relays at Champaign; March 8, Notre Dame at Notre Dame; March 15, indoor conference meet at Evanston; March 22, Wisconsin relay carnival.

Collegiate Honors to Be at Stake In the Meet

The Badger Ski club takes the Prom stage this afternoon, when a coterie of some of the best ski jumpers in America fly off the stand on Muir Knoll at 2:15 o'clock. Five nationally known ski clubs will send representatives to this meet, besides the unattached jumpers and men from Marquette university and Ripon college.

Sverre Strom, Badger grad, will defend his intercollegiate jumping honors, while the nationally known flyers will attempt to break the long standing record of Badger Omtvedt, who now holds the leading mark.

All is in readiness to make this year's Prom event the best yet. Snow is plentiful, the lake is frozen over, and the weather is ideal for the sport. The meet will give many students an opportunity to witness a high class ski meet—one that ranks with the best in the country. The meet will be held rain, shine or zero weather.

Such clubs as the Minneapolis Ski club, Milwaukee Ski club, Norge Ski club of Chicago, Westhy Ski club of Minneapolis and Badger Ski club of Wisconsin will send such stars as Lars Haugen, Barney Riley, Hans Hansen, Oscar Lunndh, Sven Welhaven.

Erhling Landwig, Fred Pabst, Carl Nielson, Morris Waterman, Dudley Carmicheal, Sverre Strom, George Martin, Gordon Taylor, and George Pabst will enter also. Marquette and Ripon colleges will also send men to compete for the intercollegiate championship. Many unattached men are also competing for honors.

Ten famous ski riders from Chicago have been signed for the meet, incuding Alf Jensen, eastern state champion, Carl Nilson, captain of the noted Norge Ski club, and Sig Stedt, another star.

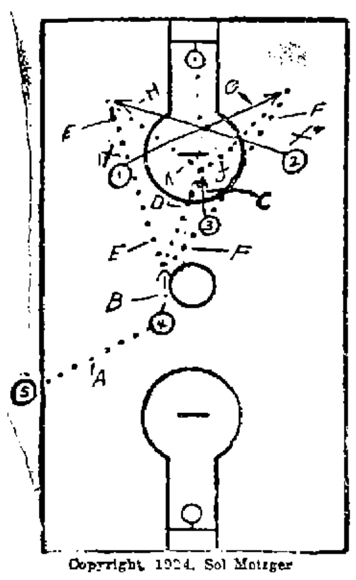

Dudley Carmichael, of the Badger Ski club, who took first place in the national collegiate meet at Lake Placid, N. Y. this winter will compete as will Gordon Taylor, Dennis Murphy, Vincent Johnson, Willis Traessler, and Richard Plummer of the Badger Ski club.

Leslie James, district manager of the Rickenbacker for southern and western Wisconsin, and Slim McCracken, auto expert of The Wisconsin News, are going to drive a Rickenbacker to La Crosse next week. At least they are going to try to break the trail. Mr. James claims that he never patronizes the railroad companies anymore.

Those looking for a car with a lot of "dash" to it should see the maroon colored Velie being exhibited by the Madison eVlie company. It has a nickleplated radiator and heavy, barreled lights.

REPORT OF THE MARKETS

February 9, 1924

Corn Market Weak; Wheat, Oats Easier

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Increased selling on the part of commission houses weakened the corn market today during the early dealings. Weather conditions reported as more favorable for enlargement of the crop movement had a bearish effect. The opening, which ranged from ⅛c lower to ⅛c advance, with May 81⅝ to 81¾, was followed by a moderate general setback.

Prices closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅛@¼c higher, May 81¾@81⅞.

WHEAT—Wheat and oats were easier in sympathy with corn. After opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, May 1.11⅝ to 1.11¾ and July 1.11½, wheat underwent something of a sag all around.

Subsequently buying which was credited to the northwest led to a material upturn in prices. The close was firm, ⅜ to 1@1⅛c net higher, May 1.12⅜ to 1.12½@⅝, July 1.12⅛ to 1.12¼.

OATS—Oats started at a shade lower to a shade advance, May 49⅛ to 49¼c and held near to the initial range.

PROVISIONS — Provisions were steady in the absence of any aggressive selling.

Stocks Higher; Steel Shares Are Bid Up

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices showed an improved tone today. Early irregularity gave way to strength when the steel shares were bid up on expectations that a favorable showing in the January unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corp'n would be announced after the market closed. Steel common crossed 108 for a net gain of more than one point. Leather and oil shares also made good recovery from recent heaviness. The best gains were recorded by ordinarily inactive specialties. Fisher Body jumping 8 points, Liggett and Meyers, 5 and General Electric Foundation Company, Remington Typewriter and Otis Elevator rising one to nearly 4 points. The closing was strong.

Sales approximated 450,000 shares.

RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE WISCONSIN STATE BOARD OF HEALTH GOVERNING WATERWORKS, SEWERAGE, REFUSE DISPOSAL.

The following resolution has been adopted by the Wisconsin State Board of Health:

RESOLVED, that the State Board of Health assembled at regular meeting in the Madison office this 30th day of January, 1924, hereby make the following rules and regulations governing waterworks, sewerage and refuse disposal (Chapter 144, 1923 statutes) and direct that they shall bear the seal of the Board, be attested by the State Health Officer, be published in the official state paper and distributed in pamphlet form to all health officers and to any citizens asking for the same, in accordance with Section 140.05 (3) of the 1923 statutes.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that these rules and regulations become effective thirty days after official publication.

LEGAL STATUS

SECTION 1—OWNERS AFFECTED.

The rules and regulations herein presented have the force and effect of law and govern the submission of plans and the general supervision and control of waterworks, sewerage systems and refuse disposal plants. They shall apply in general only to municipalities but must be complied with by any owner of such plants upon written notice or order from the Board.

SECTION 2—RIGHT TO AMEND OR MODIFY CODE RESERVED.

The Board reserves the right to amend or modify this code at any regular or special meeting.

GENERAL CONDITIONS
PLANT DESIGN

SECTION 3—PRELIMINARY.

Upon application, accompanied by an outline of any proposed waterworks, sewerage system or refuse disposal plant, the general requirements which will meet the approval of the board will be outlined. Preliminary or incomplete plans may be submitted for approval and recommendations if accompanied with a statement outlining omitted portions, detail plans for which shall be submitted before final approval or construction.

SECTION 4—PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS TO BE SUBMITTED.

Plans and specifications shall be submitted to and approved by the Board before commencing construction, for

(a) New water supplies, also for extensions and alterations in the source, pumping equipment, purification, storage or any other part of existing waterworks which may affect the quality or quantity of the water.

(b) New sewerage systems and alterations or extensions to existing systems which may materially affect the quality or quantity of the effluent, or location of the outlet.

(c) New refuse disposal plants and material modifications in existing plants.

All plans and specifications shall be accompanied by an application for approval.

SECTION 5—PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS.

Municipalities shall submit three sets of plans for waterworks and sewerage and two for refuse disposal; other owners two sets of all plans. One set of all approved plans will be retained on file with the Board and one returned to the owner. The third set of municipal waterworks plans will be retained for filing with the Railroad Commission and of sewerage plans returned to the municipality for filing with the register of deeds.

The plans and specifications shall include:

(a) General plans
(b) Detailed plans
(c) Specifications
(d) Engineer's report

Plans shall not be larger than can be conveniently handled. All sheets for the same set of plans shall be numbered and folded to form a folio 8 1-2" by 11", and shall consist of sketches or prints upon a medium or light weight, high grade paper that will not crack when folded nor tear with reasonable usage, or upon cloth. The scale in feet to which the plans are drawn, the north point, the date and the name of the designer and owner shall in all cases be indicated.

All plans shall be drawn to a suitable scale which for general plans should not be greater than 100 feet nor less than 300 feet to the inch. Plans for modifications or extensions to existing systems or plants shall indicate clearly the connections or relation thereto, and, if not already on file with the Board, submittal of plans of the existing system or plant also may be required.

SECTION 6—REQUIREMENTS IN DESIGN.

In general approved modern practice shall be followed. In case new appliances or methods are adopted, sufficient data, based upon practical application, experimental or otherwise, shall be submitted to show that satisfactory results can be secured.

SECTION 7—PROVISION FOR FUTURE.

Waterworks and sewerage plans shall amply provide for the probable population at least twenty-five years hence except in considering parts of the systems that can be readily increased in capacity. Similar consideration shall be given to the ultimate capacity of institutions.

PLANT OPERATION

SECTION 8—GENERAL.

Because of various local conditions which it is impossible to anticipate, it is impracticable to set forth other than general rules governing the operation of water purification, sewage treatment and refuse disposal plants. Every municipality or institution, however, will be required to so operate these plants as to obtain the highest possible degree of efficiency at all times. Specific instructions based upon investigations will be given from time to time regarding the operation of individual plants.

SECTION 9—SUPERVISION.

A competent person shall be in charge of the operation of every water purification, sewage treatment or refuse disposal plant, and study the various controlling factors in order that maximum efficiency may be obtained at all times. In case of incompetent supervision or inefficient operation, the board after due notice, may require the municipality or institution to make such changes as may be considered necessary to obtain efficient results.

SECTION 10—CHEMICALS.

When chemicals are used in connection with any purification or treatment process, a sufficient quantity of high grade material shall be kept on hand at all times to insure against ineffective operation because of delays in securing these materials.

SECTION 11—REPORTS AND RECORDS.

Suitable analyses shall be made and records kept upon approved forms of the operation of all municipal water purification and sewage treatment plants. A certified report upon approved forms regarding the operation of municipal water purification plants during the preceding month, shall be submitted to the board not later than the 10th of each month.

Reports regarding municipal sewage treatment plants shall be submitted during the month of January for the preceding year and oftener upon written notice of the Board. Similar reports and records may also be required upon refuse disposal plants and privately owned water purification and sewage treatment plants by written notice from the Board.

SECTION 12—ALTERATIONS MAY BE REQUIRED.

Where existing plants are so constructed that satisfactory results cannot be secured such alteration may be required as necessary to secure adequate efficiency.

WATERWORKS
PLANT DESIGN

SECTION 13—GENERAL PLANS.

The general plans shall show the location of—

(b) The purification plant.

(c) All mains together with their sizes and depth.

(d) All shut-off valves, hydrants, cross connections, etc.

(e) Storage or distribution reservoirs.

(See Figure 1.)

SECTION 14—DETAIL PLANS.

The detail plans shall show—

(a) Details regarding intake pipe, crib, screens, etc., if water is taken from stream or lake.

(b) If a ground water supply, details of the well, spring, infiltration gallery, etc., the manner of protecting the supply from surface wash and other pollution. A sketch or statement showing all possible sources of pollution within 500 feet and the direction of the ground water flow, if known, shall also be submitted.

(c) Complete details of the purification plant including sedimentation and mixing chambers; collecting and piping systems; method of applying chemicals; filters including depth, size and uniformity of various strata; rate controllers; loss of head gauges; washing arrangement; pumps; special devices, etc.

(d) Details of the pumping station and equipment.

(e) Any special appurtenances or fixtures in connection with the distribution system.

(f) Details of elevated tanks, stand pipes or reservoirs used for storage of the water.

SECTION 15—PROTECTION OF SOURCE.

A suitable intake properly screened and located shall be provided for surface supplies. Wells, springs, etc., shall be adequately protected from all surface wash. Ground water sources shall be so located that there will be no danger of pollution from insanitary surroundings such as cesspools, privies, sewers, etc. This practically prevents the use of shallow wells or springs in a municipality or in thickly populated areas and also of deep wells if not properly sealed.

SECTION 16—PUMPING EQUIPMENT.

The pumping equipment shall be divided into two or more units except where ample storage is available to permit necessary repairs without interrupting the service. The capacity shall be ample for fire protection and domestic consumption.

SECTION 17—PURIFICATION.

Some modern method of purification, applicable to the needs of the municipality or institution, and adaptable to the water to be treated, shall be provided in connection with all surface supplies.

Apparatus for direct, positive and accurate application of chemicals also adequate mixing devices and sedimentation basins shall be provided in connection with all mechanical gravity or pressure filters. In each case a careful study should be made of the character of the water and experimental work done, if necessary, to determine the type of purification or treatment adaptable.

Rate controllers and loss of head gauges shall be provided for all filters. The depth of the filtering sand shall not be less than 2 1-2', its effective size shall not be less than .3 m. m. nor more than .4 m. m., and its uniformity coefficient should not exceed 2. Sand shall be practically pure quartz or silica free from dirt or foreign material. The following average rates of filtration shall not be exceeded:

Slow sand filters, 4,000,000 gallons per acre per day.

Gravity mechanical filters, 125,000,000 gallons per acre per day.

Pressure mechanical filters, 75,000,000 gallons per acre per day.

Purification plants shall be divided into a sufficient number of units to allow for necessary repairs and alterations without interrupting service or impairing the quality of the water delivered.

SECTION 18—AUXILIARY INTAKES, BY-PASSES AND CROSS CONNECTIONS.

Auxiliary intakes, by-passes or cross connections whereby polluted water may be pumped or allowed to flow into the distribution system of any public supply under any conditions will be prohibited except under the following special conditions:

(a) An existing intake or by-pass may be maintained providing a section of the pipe is removed to be reinserted only in case of emergency and immediately issuing notice to consumers to boil all water used and notifying the board by wire.

(b) In new supplies, auxiliary intakes or by-passes may be permitted by special approval of the board if satisfactory reasons are set forth as to the necessity therefor, and installation made in accordance with (a) above.

(c) An existing cross connection may be continued if protected by double check valves equipped with suitable gauges, valves, etc., for testing (Fig. 2), and on condition that monthly inspections of such equipment are made by the owner of the public supply and results thereof reported to the board. The board, however, reserves the right to require elimination of any cross connection if inspections are not regularly made or if the connection is found faulty. New cross connections are prohibited.

SECTION 19—DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM.

The distribution system shall be constructed of suitable material and provided with sufficient shut-off valves to facilitate operation and repairs. Where practical, dead ends shall be connected so as to provide adequate circulation of the water. Pipe smaller than 4" in diameter shall not be used in municipal systems except possibly for isolated service connections.

SECTION 20—FIRE PROTECTION.

The pumping equipment, storage facilities, distribution system and location of hydrants shall be such as will furnish adequate fire protection.

SECTION 21—ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The engineer's report shall cover the following:

(a) Water consumption: State the present and estimated population twenty-five years hence for municipalities; for institutions the present and estimated ultimate capacity. Any special conditions that might affect the growth of the municipality or institution; also any industrial activities that may affect the requirements of the water supply should be discussed. Give estimate of the daily total and per capita consumption, both for present and future population.

(b) The Source of Supply: If samples of the water can be obtained results of chemical and bacteriological analyses shall be included, otherwise the probable character of the water shall be discussed, basing conclusions on analyses or other available information regarding water from similar sources.

If a surface supply, the area, population and a description of the tributary watershed shall be given. All possible sources of pollution, topographical and geological features of the watershed and other conditions that might, in any way, affect the quality or quantity of the supply shall be discussed in detail.

If the source is ground water, give details regarding the number, depth and character of the wells, springs, infiltration galleries, etc., and definite information regarding the various strata. State whether the source is ever subject to flooding.

(c) Purification: State reasons for adopting the method of purification outlined, specifying any experimental work done. Describe completely any special appliances.

(d) Pumping Equipment: The number, type, size and capacity of the pumps to be installed and type of power should be given; discuss clearly any special features and method of connecting the pumps with the wells, suction lines or other parts of the system.

(e) Distribution System: State the class, weight and amount of the various sizes of pipe and describe any special features.

(f) Storage: Give amount and location of the storage available, both before and after purification, together with details regarding its effect upon the quality of the supply.

(g) Fire Protection: Discuss adequacy of fire protection in regard to capacity and pressure.

(h) Cost: Give estimated cost of integral parts of the system both for complete design and original installation.

OPERATION

SECTION 22—DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM:

All intakes, pumping equipment and distribution systems shall be maintained in a proper operating condition at all times. The mains shall be regularly flushed at sufficiently frequent intervals to prevent accumulation of sediment or of stagnant water.

SECTION 23—SEDIMENTATION AND STORAGE RESERVOIRS:

All sedimentation and storage reservoirs shall be cleaned at sufficiently frequent intervals to prevent such accumulation of sediment as will interfere with the efficient operation of the waterworks.

SECTION 24—SLOW SAND FILTERS:

Slow sand filters shall be cleaned at such times as may be necessary to secure efficient operation. In general the "loss of head" should not exceed 5 feet before cleaning. When sand has been removed from the filter so that the remaining depth is less than 1 1-2 feet, the filter bed shall be brought up to its original depth by adding clean sand of a proper size and grade.

SECTION 25—MECHANICAL FILTERS:

In connection with all mechanical filters, the water shall receive preliminary treatment consisting of coagulation and sedimentation. A sufficient amount of the coagulant shall be applied at all times to secure a satisfactory flow. Before the "loss of head" has reached 10 feet, the filters shall be washed with filtered water until the effluent wash water is practically clear. Subsequent to washing the first filtrate shall be wasted for a sufficient period of time to place the plant again in effective operating condition. Sudden changes in the rate of filtration shall be avoided.

Care must be exercised to prevent caking or cementing of the sand in the filter beds and should this occur the sand shall be removed and replaced by new sand or the old sand may be screened and returned to the beds. When the depth of the sand in the filter becomes less than 2 feet because of loss by washing, the filter shall be brought to its original depth by adding new sand of a proper size and quality.

SECTION 26—STERILIZATION:

Where any process of sterilization is used as a method of purification, the plant shall be so operated as to secure effective results at all times. extra parts or duplicate apparatus shall be kept on hand to avoid unnecessary delays.

SEWERAGE
PLANT DESIGN

SECTION 27—GENERAL PLANS:

The general plans shall show—

(a) Topography, including all streams or water courses and approximate contour lines.

(b) Location of wells or other sources of public water supply.

(c) Location, sizes, grades and direction of flow of all sewers, also the elevation of the inverts and the depth of cut or street elevation at all manholes.

(d) Location of outlets, treatment plants, by-passes or overflows, manholes, lampholes, flush tanks, syphons, pumping stations and other accessories.

(See Figure 3.)

SECTION 28—DETAIL PLANS.

The detail plans shall show—

(a) Profile along the line of all sewers except where reasonably accurate contour lines are indicated on the general plan.

(b) The cross section of all sewers unless of standard pipe.

(c) Details of all manholes, flush tanks, catch basins, inverted syphons, etc.

(d) Details of such pumping equipment as may be provided.

(e) A map of the property to be used for the disposal or treatment works on which shall be indicated topography, location with reference to the sewer district, the municipality and built up sections and the arrangement of the various treatment units.

(f) Complete details of all treatment units shall be given, including elevations of the various parts of the plant and of the high and low water levels of the streams or body of water into which the effluent is to be discharged. The depth, size and uniformity of all stone or sand for filters shall be indicated.

SECTION 29—TYPE OF SYSTEM.

All new systems shall be designed as sanitary sewers or on the "separate" plan. In existing systems constructed on the "combined" plan, adequate storm water overflows shall be provided in connection with treatment. Furthermore, future developments and extensions shall be constructed as "separate" rather than "combined" systems when practicable. No storm water from streets, roofs, cisterns, etc., shall be allowed to discharge into sanitary sewers.

SECTION 30—SEWER GRADES.

All sewers shall be laid to a grade not less than that indicated in the following table, except when necessary because of special conditions in which case detailed reasons therefore shall be given.

Size of pipe	Fall in feet feet of sewer per 100
6 inches	.45
8 inches	.30
10 inches	.22
12 inches	.18
15 inches	.14
18 inches	.11
20 inches	.09
24 inches	.08

SECTION 31—MANHOLES.

Manholes shall be installed at all changes in grade or direction and at distances not greater than 400 feet apart. Lampholes may be used only for special conditions and shall not be substituted for manholes nor installed at the end of laterals greater than 250 feet in length.

SECTION 32.—Alignment.

All sewers shall be laid in true alignment between manholes.

SECTION 33—TREATMENT.

Treatment shall be provided in connection with all new installations the extent of which will depend on local conditions. In connection with developing or modifying existing systems where no treatment is now provided, efforts shall be made to so reconstruct the system as to bring the sewage together at points suitable for treatment which shall be provided as soon as practicable.

Plans for sewage treatment will be approved only when the following rates of operation are not exceeded except where special conditions exist when the Board may permit higher rates and modifications.

SEPTIC TANKS, a detention period of eight hours.

IMHOFF OR SIMILAR TANKS.

(a) In the flowing thru or settling chamber, a detention period of not less than 2 hours.

(b) In the sludge digestion compartment, a capacity of not less than 1.5 cu. ft. per capita computed below a horizontal plane 18 inches below the slot.

(c) Gas vent area not less than 10% of total surface area of tank and width not less than 2 feet.

INTERMITTENT SAND FILTERS, 1,000 persons per acre of area, the filter to have a minimum depth of 3 feet above the under drains.

CONTACT BEDS, 1,000 persons per acre of area per foot of depth with a minimum depth of 4 feet.

TRICKLING FILTERS, 3,000 persons per acre of area per foot of depth, with a minimum depth of 5 feet.

The effective size of sand for intermittent sand filters should not be less than .2 m. m. nor more than .4 m. m. Contact beds should consist of stone not less than one-half inch in diameter nor more than 2 inches, while for trickling filters the corresponding sizes should be ¾ inches to 2½ inches. Sedimentation or other treatment to remove the suspended matter from the effluent of trickling filters will usually be necessary to prevent local nuisances.

Treatment plants shall be divided into such a number of units that necessary repairs or alterations can be made without impairing the character of the effluent.

SECTION 34—SLUDGE DISPOSAL.

Adequate provision shall be made for the disposal of sludge or screenings in connection with all treatment plants and in no case will the discharge of sludge or screening into a stream or water course be permitted. Sludge bed areas should not be less than ¾ sq. ft. per capita for Imhoff tanks and ¼ for septic tanks.

SECTION 35.—ACTIVATED SLUDGE AND SPECIAL PROCESSES.

No definite requirements are made for the activated sludge or special processes. Each installation of this character will be considered separately.

SECTION 36—BY-PASSES.

Plants should be of adequate capacity and so designed that by-passes or overflows are not necessary, but if installed, by-passes shall be equipped with lock and key.

SECTION 37—ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The engineer's report shall cover the following:

(a) SEWAGE FLOW: State the present and estimated population for municipalities twenty-five years hence and for institutions the present and ultimate capacity. Estimate the amount of domestic sewage, ground water, industrial waste, etc., that the system or various parts thereof may have to care for, both for present and future needs.

(b) SOURCE OF WATER SUPPLY: Give location of intake or wells, etc., also approximate maximum, minimum and average daily water consumption if public supply is already in use.

(c) EXTENT OF SYSTEM: Extent to which plans provide sewerage facilities, both for initial installation and future development.

(d) INDUSTRIAL WASTE: Character of industrial wastes in as much as they may affect the sewerage system.

(e) SPECIAL FEATURES: Discuss low grades, special devices, etc.

(f) TYPE OF PURIFICATION: Both for present and future need and reason for adopting the proposed method.

(g) SOIL: Probable character of soil or strata thru which the sewers are to be laid and portion of the system that will be below normal ground water level.

(h) COST: Give estimated cost of integral parts of system, both for the complete design and original installation.

(i) STREAM: Describe the stream or body of water into which the final effluent is to discharge. If stream, give width, depth and estimated minimum flow. State for what it is used below the outlet and whether there are any special conditions, as dam, that will affect the flow. If a lake, give approximate areas, also depth in vicinity of the outlet.

OPERATION

SECTION 38—SEWER SYSTEM:

The sewer system shall be kept free from obstructions at all times by the use of flushing or cleaning devices where necessary. It shall otherwise be maintained in a proper condition.

SECTION 39—PUMPING EQUIPMENT

All pumping equipment shall be maintained in an efficient operating condition in order to prevent backing up of the sewage into the collecting system or bringing into play overflows or by-passes which may result in the discharge of untreated sewage.

SECTION 40—SCREENS.

All screens shall be frequently cleaned so as to prevent stoppage and the screenings shall be properly disposed of.

SECTION 41—TANK TREATMENT.

In all methods of tank treatment, the sludge shall be removed and properly disposed of at such frequent intervals as not to interfere with the effective operation of the plant. In general part of the sludge from Imhoff or similar tanks should be removed every three months except that by removing the sludge late in the fall the tank may be allowed to run thru the winter without subsequent removal, providing the sludge storage capacity is sufficient. Tanks should have adequate supervision to guard against stoppages which might result in backing the sewage up into the collecting system or in bringing into play overflows which would result in the discharge of untreated sewage.

SECTION 42—INTERMITTENT SAND FILTERS.

The dosing devices in connection with intermittent sand filters shall be maintained in an efficient operating condition at all times to assure proper dosing of the various beds. The doses should be of sufficient quantity to provide uniform distribution over the bed, (about 3" in depth) should be so arranged as to allow for a proper rest period and not exceed three per day. In case the filter becomes "foul," it should be put out of service for sufficient time to recuperate. It is recommended that slow sand filters be covered in the winter in order to obtain satisfactory operating results. If not covered, they should be furrowed or otherwise prepared for winter operation. The filters should be cleaned late in the fall in preparation for winter operation and should also be cleaned as early in the spring as possible. When the depth of the filter sand has been reduced to less than 1½ feet by cleaning, the bed shall be brought to its original depth by adding clean sand of a proper size and quality.

SECTION 43—TRICKLING FILTERS.

The dosing devices shall be carefully maintained to assure proper operation of the plant at all times. The distribution system should be so arranged as to provide as uniform distribution of the sewage as possible and the spraying nozzles be kept free from obstructions. It is recommended that trickling filters be covered during the winter in order to secure efficient operation. If not covered the cycle of operation and dose should be so arranged as to prevent freezing and assure continuous operation of the plant.

SECTION 44—CONTACT BEDS.

All dosing devices of contact beds shall be properly maintained in order to assure maintenance of a cycle of operation that will produce satisfactory results. The standing full period should not be less than 45 minutes nor more than two hours. The rest period should be at least four hours. The number of fillings daily should not exceed three.

SECTION 45—ACTIVATED SLUDGE AND SPECIAL PLANTS.

No specific instructions are given but such plants shall be so operated as to secure effective results at all times.

SECTION 46—SLUDGE DISPOSAL.

The method of sludge disposal should be carefully maintained at all times and in no case shall the sludge from any treatment tank be discharged into any stream or water course, or so disposed of as to create a nuisance.

REFUSE DISPOSAL PLANTS

SECTION 47—

In view of the varied character of these plants, it is impracticable to set forth definite rules regarding their design or operation. Each plant will, therefore, be considered separately. They shall, however, be so constructed and maintained that the highest degree of efficiency will result and so operated as not to cause nuisances or complaints because of obnoxious odors, or other objectionable or insanitary conditions.

Our Saturday Open Letters

TO EDWARD BOK

Dear Eddie: It is announced that your committee is to extend the time originally fixed for the referendum on the peace plan. Has the vote fizzled, Eddie? The last vote we noticed was 400,000 for the plan and 55,000 against it. In view of the amount of money spent on the proposition that is hardly an impressive poll, is it? This puny expression from 110,000,000 people will hardly serve your original intention of a national vote that would stampede the two old parties into declarations in behalf of the League of Nations.

TO THE COMMON COUNCIL

Dear Aldermen: Your action in unanimously extending the itme for the payment of taxes to March 1 will be appreciated in Madison. By the way, why can't the tax burden be split? The federal government permits income taxes to be made in quarterly payments. Why can't we have at least semi-annual payment of taxes? Taxpaying time comes at the worst possible time.—immediately after the holidays when the pocketbooks have been drained.

TO THE DELTA KAPPA EPSILON FRATERNITY

Dear Dekes: Has your attention been called to the fact that Charles H. Levermore who won the Bok peace award prize is a Deke? Might get his photo for your mantel-piece. It might impress some future rushee. We suppose, however, that you will not want to exploit the fact that Dr. Levermore was a pacifist before the war.

TO QUINT CHILDS, BOSCOBEL

Dear Mr. Childs: You write concerning the new dance hall law passed by the last legislature. You say that private dances cannot be held in the homes without being affected by the law. That is unfounded gossip circulated by the enemies of the law, Mr. Childs. The law passed by the last legislature simply gives the county boards power to pass measures regulating PUBLIC dance halls. This was done to meet the deplorable conditions reported in the rural dance halls.

TO THE FIRE LADDIES

Dear Firemen: You have lost a good friend in the death of Henry C. Bernard, assistant fire chief. He has been with the department since 1882 and it is said of Mr. Bernard that he never felt the necessity of preferring charges against any man under him. He died while responding to the call of duty. A true guardian of Madison's safety and welfare has answered the last alarm.

TO UNIVERSITY SOCIAL LEADERS

Dear Social Lions: Perhaps it is O. K. to bring in outside music for the proms. We understand that $1,000 was paid for the ten piece Drake hotel orchestra for the prom last night. The importation of outside orchestras for other university functions, however, should be discouraged. There are a number of worthy students at the university who are working their way through school by playing in local orchestras. They are good musicians. There should be a fraternal spirit among the students,—a desire on the part of those who are in affluent circumstances to help those who are trying to make the grade financially.

TO MRS. W. J. OSBURN, PRESIDENT OF THE Y. W. C. A.

Dear Mrs. Osburn: The announcement that you have again been chosen to lead Y. W. C. A. activities here will be pleasing news to the hundreds in Madison who know of the fine work being carried on by the organization. As president of the board of directors, you have carried a large measure of responsibility.

TO THE UNITED STATES SENATE

Dear Senators: We understand that sleepless nights is the lot of at least four members of the senate these days. It is reported that one senator has already lost 20 pounds. It appears that some senatorial favorites were let in on the Sinclair melon on the stock market before public announcement was made of the Sinclair-Fall deal. It is reported that several of Fall's senatorial cronies made big profits on the tips he gave them. Small wonder that the social lobby is exerting every possible influence to head off the oil investigation.

—VOICE OF THE PEOPLE—

Cleaning the Roads

Orfordville Farmer Discusses The Snow Question; Why Should Farmers Do It?

[To the Editor]—Nearly every day we see and read in regards to clearing the road of weeds, brush and snow. Some are amusing to read, others are all one-sided affairs.

I wonder how many of our educated writers really know the problems and realize what it means. We have a state trunk highway, a county road sytem and the town road system. The state trunk highway is in charge of the state commission and this commission has no regard for any farmer who lives along its line. They send out men who come along with their graders and ditchers tearing up the farmer's driveways, making ditches so the farmer can't get on to the road, and tell the farmer who happens to beef about it: "Fix it up yourself if you want to get on the road or stay home."

Then they come along and say, you hay-seed, why don't you clean away the brush so the snow don't pile up in the road? Let me ask, why should the farmer do it? Why not make these people whose business is so important, and who have nothing else to do but ride along day or night, do a little cleaning up and snow shoveling?

There is another problem just at this writing. State trunk highway No. 20 is clear of snow. The highway running from Orfordville to Beloit is full of snow. So are all highways from by-roads to the main roads. A farmer living on a by-road wants to haul his hogs to town. He can't get to town with a wagon, because he can't get to No. 20 with the wagon. He can't use a sled because highway No. 20 is cleared of snow. Now you raise money to shut the farmer out so the tourist and other idlers can spin along at will. I call that class legislation. Why should not the man who is benefited by such a system pay for what he gets?

A two or four cent gasoline tax would surely help. I contend that if a system of snow cleaning is adopted it should be done on all highways, whether state, county or town. If all the taxpayers are to pay for its upkeep, all the taxpayers should be benefited alike. I don't know what Mr. G. W. Martin of Milwaukee found in Fox River Valley, but I do know if he was to visit some farmers in Rock county just now he would find tough wheeling and hard sledding.

So much about the snow. Now just a word about the Mellon plan of taxation. I agree with your article, "Another Referendum," absolutely. I received one of those secret ballots yesterday and did not waste much time to register my vote against it. Most all plans of the big fellows come out with such propaganda. They talk reduction of taxes and it sounds good, but when a farmer goes to pay his taxes he finds it always to be a little higher. No wonder farmers want to sell out, and the boys leaving the farm. Yes, Farmers, its hard sledding, but then you have the consolation you can raise your own grub.—C. F. Hesgard, Orfordville, Wis.

LIKES THE PAPER

[To the Editor]—I inclose check for $1.50 to renew my subscription. Will add that I not only consider The Capital Times one of the best papers in southern Wisconsin, but one of the few good and real ones in the state. Pop it to 'em, Bill. La Follette for President!—L. E. Moh, Granton, Wis.

The State Press

If the government at Washington displayed a callous indifference to the revelations that have been made or may be made; if the President of the United States, instead of saying, in effect, the same thing President Grant said when scandal broke out in his administration, "Let no guilty man escape," had attempted to conceal the evidence or evade the issue, there might be some ground for the despair of the republic that is shown by some hysterical newspapers and some agitators among politicians who are anxious to gain their own ends by arousing public apprehension concerning conditions at Washington. But the American people are a decent people; the American government is made up of men who are, generally speaking, "square shooters." The Teapot Dome scandal is being probed, the guilt will be placed where it belongs, and the offenders punished. This is assured.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Too bad the thing is so big that it cannot be whitewashed!

Big Bill Easton, the Shylock who guards over the fortunes of some 18 or 20 fraternities and sororities down at the Warner office on State street, invited a friend to dinner some time ago. After inviting him, Bill started to enlighten his friend with stories about Bill's son Jack. Especially did he dwell on the lad's powers of memory.

"Do you suppose he will remember me," asked Bill's friend.

"Remember you," says Bill, "why he remembers every face he ever saw."

An hour later the two entered Bill's house, and after the friends had shaken hands all around he called Jack over to him. "Do you remember me, my little man!"

"Of course I do," came quickly, "your the same guy dad brought home to dinner about a year ago, and ma was so mad she wouldn't speak to dad for a week!"

Listening In On Congress

WHAT HE COULD SELL

IF the secretary of the interior had a right to make a contract with Doheny for the construction of storage tanks, for the dredging of channels, for the building of docks, and to pay for the work in oil that was taken from the property of the government of the United States, then it would follow that he would have the right to dispose of the Capitol grounds in the Capital City; he would have the right to dispose of any of the public buildings of the United States.—Senator Norris (R.) Nebraska.

* * *

BAKING powder manufacturers fill the baking powder car full and in transit it is shaken down. Now, baking powder has an affinity for moisture and the moment moisture gets into the can the powder expands; it pushes right up. Now, to provide for that expansion they have to provide a ridge, a sort of curvature in the can, which will allow space for the expansion to take place. If they did not allow for that subsequent expansion in the baking powder, the can would blow up.—Charles Wesley Dunn before House Committee on Agriculture.

Poems That Live

A BIRTHDAY

My heart is like a singing bird
Whose nest is in a water'd shoot;
My heart is like an apple-tree
Whose boughs are bent with thick-set fruit;
My heart is like a rainbow shell
That paddles in a halcyon sea;
My heart is gladder than all these,
Because my love is come to me.
Raise me a dais of silk and down;
Hang it with vair and purple dyes;
Carve it in doves and pomegranates,
And peacocks with a hundred eyes;
Work it in gold and silver grapes,
In leaves and silver fleurs de lys;
Because the birthday of my life
Is come, my love is come to me.

Bright and Brief

THE harem is the most practical device for restoring the numerical strength of the Turkish nation, and the leaders count on it. The Turkish women realize a simple truth which cannot safely be uttered among Christian peoples—that a man can have an honest love for half a dozen or more women at once. Wife number one is loved for her eyes and soft voice, number two for her hair and vivacious spirit, number three for her figure and intelligence, and so on it goes. The women are content.

—Julius C. Nayphe, a Greek, visiting this country.

* * *

I HAVE two good reasons for not using my title. As "Mr. Mirskey" I get along comfortably and happily on my income as a musical director, drive a good coupe and enjoy my life. Should I announce my title it would be necessary to buy a more expensive car, a half dozen suits of evening clothes and entertain on a lavish scale. All of which I would rather do without. The other reason is that I have no wish to commercialize my family name.

—Bronislaw N. Mirskey, titled Russian nobleman, now musical director Fenway Theater, Boston.

NO, WE DON'T TAKE PART IN STACKED VOTES

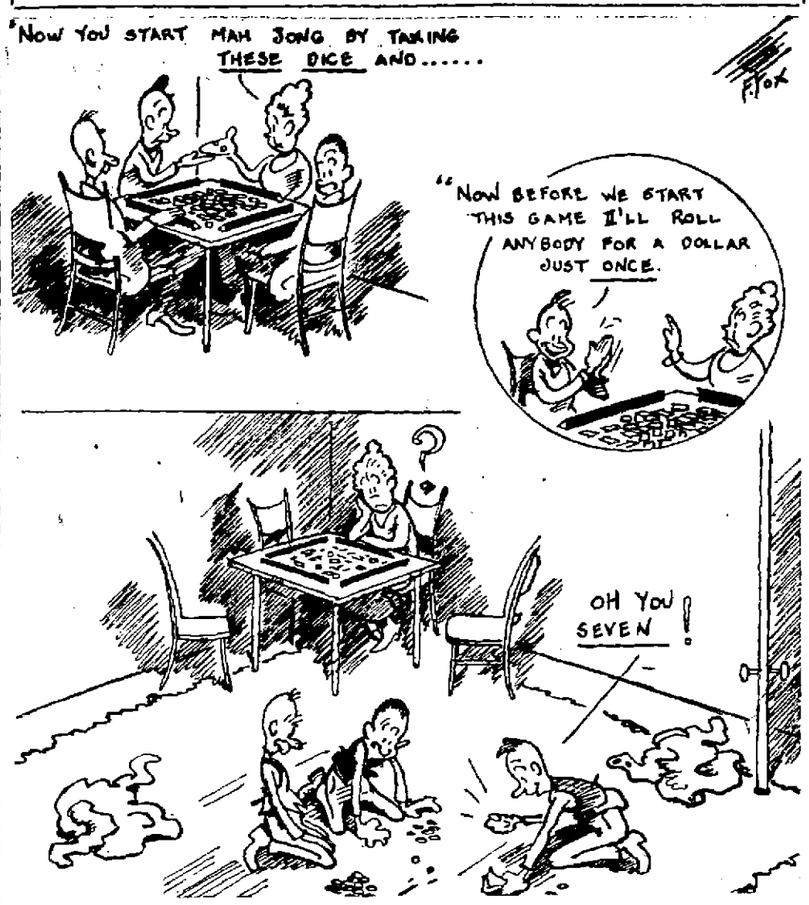

[To the Editor]—Have you voted on the Bok Prize Peace Plan? If not, send to us for as many copies and voting coupons as you and your friends can use. This association votes "yes" on the Plan.

Are you co-operating with those who are working to end American isolation, reconstruct a broken world, recover a foreign market for the farmer and save our young men from future wars by getting America into World Court and League?

By signing and returning the attached enrollment blank, you will become a part of the great army that is certain to drive isolationists and and bitter-enders out of American public life and so recover for our country the moral leadership that in the past has been its proudest possession.

Yours for a pro-League President and Senate.
The League of Nations Non-Partisan Ass'n, New York.

Should Old Games Be Forgot

A Word on Health

The garbage heap doth breed the flies;
From undrained pools mosquitoes rise.

An eight course dinner and a two horse hearse.

A lot of domestic trouble is produced by foreign bodies.

The best known cure
For a pallid skin,
Is nine holes out
And nine holes in.

Knowing not what to do beats doing something we ought not to do.

Free medical advice from laymen is usually worth all it costs.

There's this to remember,
When you're blue as the duce;
To mope and to worry
Is never of use.

Sickness caused by knives and forks can't be cured with teaspoons.

When your fuel bill's too high, the state of your vitality's too low.

He cursed at the doctor
And he cursed at the nurse,
But he begged to be saved
When he thought of the hearse.

When professional men have commercial aspirations they lose that which makes them professional.

A THOUGHT

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

SENTIMENT

If you can see in bloom of tree
A hint of boyhood's happier days,
Or in the gleam of silver stream
Discover long forgotten ways;
If in a boy you glimpse the joy
You owned before you'd carned a cent,
And claim from him some memory dim,
You've still the touch of sentiment.

If you are stirred by call of bird
To search him out on bush or tree,
And make the quest to find his nest,
You're still the boy you used to be.
If in your throat a lump you note
When others face a grief you've known,
If you must share the pain they bear,
Age has not turned your heart to stone.

If when you walk, sometimes your talk
Is not of gold or trade or fame,
But earlier days and happier ways
When you know many a flower by name;
If church or school or dimpled pool
Or long deserted barn or mill
Still takes you back o'er memory's track,
You've something cynics cannot kill.

If you will make for friendship's sake
A journey, be it far or near,
A care to lift, by word or gift;
If only once or twice a year
Unselfishly you rise to be
A friend, not counting time or cost,
Sit down content—that's sentiment!
The joy which cynics say is lost.

SAM SLICK (Doran: New York)

Our parents and our grandparents, perhaps ourselves if we choose our early surroundings tastefully, were thoroughly familiar with SAM SLICK, the clock maker. He was the creation of Thomas Chandler Haliburton and he embodied practically everything that went into American humor from Artemus Ward to Bill Nye. His influence can be pretty directly even to our own day and "David Harum."

William Dean Howells remarked shortly before his death that Haliburton had dominated for three generations the humorists of the United States; "and," adds Prof. Ray Palmer Baker, in the critical estimate that prefaces his volume, "Sam Slick, though his dominance may be erroneous, there can be little doubt about his influence on the writers of America."

Prof. Baker has gone over the whole collection of Prof. Haliburton's writings and has chosen and edited that which seems likely to survive and which has marked interest today, one hundred years after the appearance of the first book generally ascribed to Sam Slick's creator.

Although Frank Swinnerton's lecture manager has pleaded with him to prolong his American visit, so as to permit his appearance in many cities and towns not on his original schedule, his connection with his London publishing house, Chatto and Windus, makes it imperative that the novelist's return to England in March. He will probably sail on March 8 and it is likely that his last lecture will be given at Princeton on March 5.

Swinnerton's novel, YOUNG FELIX, is far ahead of any other of his books at a corresponding date after publication. It is now certain that it will be his most popular work, not even excepting his famous NOCTURNE. Many consider it his best novel to date, holding that NOCTURNE, though very beautiful, was a special "stunt."

On February 8 Alfred A. Knopf publishes "Children of the Age," by Knut Hamsun. This is the first novel to appear in English since "Growth of the Soil," which can compare with that masterpiece.

Following close upon the heels of "Come Hither," comes the announcement that Alfred A. Knopf will likewise publish this month a novel by Walter de la Mare, "Henry Brocken." His travels and Adventures in the Rich, Strange and Scarce Imaginable Religions of Romance.

Excavations near Washington, D. C., have unearthed a leaden plate bearing the inscription, "Virginia Dare," and, not far from the same spot, a mound-encrusted leaden casket containing some crudely fashioned beads and a document, taken to New York to be deciphered.

When that is effected light may be thrown on a mystery that has heretofore baffled all research—the fate of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony on Roanoke Island, Virginia. Virginia Dare was the first English child to be born on American soil. She is the heroine of Mary Johnston's famous novel, "Croatan," which purports to give an account of what became of the mysteriously-lost colony.

The release of the Goldwyn film production of "Wild Oranges" has been announced for some time in February. This is the picture of Joseph Hergesheimer's novel of the Georgia coast originally published by Knopf with two other stories in a volume called "Gold and Iron." Mr. Knopf has announced that a photoplay edition of "Wild Oranges" will soon be ready.

The cost of the production includes Frank Mayo and Virginia Valli.

The following telegram was sent by Joseph Hergesheimer to the Goldwyn studio. "Give everybody in the production of 'Wild Roses' my endless thanks. I am quite speechless with delight. From the author's viewpoint it is perfection. It has passion, atmosphere, truth, perfect development. Its timeing is faster and more uninterrupted than any other picture ever made. There is not an inch of bunk in it. Everything is fine, dignified, relevant, and stirring. The setting and camera were superb. Each part was played with the utmost delicate correctness and beauty. Again thank you."

In all our reading, this is the first time we ever saw a complimentary statement by an author regarding the way a story had been filmed. Usually the creative pride is given a severe bumping by illiterate directors. This observation, of course, bars such money machines as Rupert Hughes, Robert W. Chambers, etc.

Mr. Hergesheimer became known to Madison folks last fall, it will be remembered, when he spent several days working in the Historical library. He lived at the University club during his stay.

Pack rat, much cursed pest of American wilderness camps, doesn't rob thru malice or greed, but because he has a passion for moving things.

Hornaday, doctor of zoology, tells of a pair of pack rats that carried a lot of watermelon seeds upstairs from the kitchen and hid them under a pillow. Then, they took two tablespoonfuls of cucumber seeds upstairs and put them in the pocket of a vest hanging on a nail. Next night, they removed 85 small articles from one box to an adjoining box and went into the pantry and brought out two quarts of corn which they deposited in Box No. 1. Hornaday calls the pack rat "brain busy."
